It has been around 40-50 years since the gold in Ft. Knox has been assayed and determined to be all gold, it is about time to do so, again.
That amount of money, laying around for that amount of time, attracts crooks.

Just common sense which Ron Paul is pointing out ... RON PAUL IN 2012!

THIS:
"In 1961, the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare classified non-Whites, who were not Asian, Eskimo, Aleut, Hawaiian, part-Hawaiian, or other ï¿½non-White,ï¿½ as ï¿½Negro.ï¿½ The U.S. Census Bureau also used the term ï¿½Asian and other Pacific Islanderï¿½ in 1961, which included Filipino, Hawaiian, and part-Hawaiian. The Census Bureau, like HEW, used the term ï¿½Negroï¿½ to describe blacks and those of black black ancestry, ceased being used by the U.S. Census Bureau in 1918."

There will be no little Ice Age. The earth is hotter than it has ever been with people on it, and that will continue. The magnetic collapse in the sun will not be enough to balance out our trashing of the atmosphere. There were 1/6 as many people in the 17th century.

1641. Solar Inactivity Effect on Global Temperature Insignificant

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave
Date: 2011-06-15 12:59:53 UTC
From: dave <dave@dave.dave> Message-ID: <4df8ac57$0$12457$bd467cd0@news.dslextreme.com>
Source record: 233489

The temperature change associated with any reduction in sunspot activity would likely be minimal and may not be enough to offset the impact of greenhouse gases on global warming, according to scientists who have published recent papers on the topic.
"Recent solar 11-year cycles are associated empirically with changes in global surface temperature of 0.1 Celsius," said Judith Lean, a solar physicist with the US Naval Research Laboratory.
If the cycle were to stop or slow down, the small fluctuation in temperature would do the same, eliminating the slightly cooler effect of a solar minimum compared to the warmer solar maximum. The phenomenon was witnessed during the descending phase of the last solar cycle.
This "cancelled part of the greenhouse gas warming of the period 2000-2008, causing the net global surface temperature to remain approximately flat -- and leading to the big debate of why the Earth hadn't (been) warming in the past decade," Lean, who was not involved in the three studies presented, said in an email to AFP.
A study in the March 2010 issue of Geophysical Research Letters explored what effect an extended solar minimum might have, and found no more than a 0.3 Celsius dip by 2100 compared to normal solar fluctuations.

Negros are VERY BAD about policing their own. They will run in defense of a criminal, IF HE IS NEGRO! This is probably the major factor in them being unable to escape the crime and violence which surrounds them and holds them enslaved to the criminal world. Even worse, they refuse to police their own populations, and rather than punishing attacks and crimes on other races, it is generally encouraged.

This trait is equally shared by the indians from mexico.

The Asians also refuse to involve police in their races affairs, however, THEY DO POLICE THEIR POPULATIONS. Often the punishment that they inflict on their own to discourage individuals is harsher than what would be doled out by our courts and jails! This is probably the major reason why you will find many groups of Asians being held in high respect in the larger outlying communities around them ...

This is just simply how it is ... any observation of these groups, anywhere in the country, will always be the same ...

Until those races and groups fix their own problems, they just exist as groups to fill our prisons ...

Very sad, and very true ...

Gawd, let's hope not!

Breeding with those of low IQ, such as you reflect, is very detrimental to a super society, like America!

But, let's hope you wrong, I like pedigree in my animals, and also value it in my friends and family. Lucky, maybe, but it seems my family attempts to keep from breeding with negros and indians. Asian populations have sufficient IQs and a few the attractive and desirable traits ... but with negros, it isn't just NO! It is HELL NO!

Now, this might be a matter of just personal taste and is quite acceptable in America where we have free choice to pursue our our freedoms to do as we wish along these lines. However, certain races will always display more desirable IQs and physical features ... and this is good, those who stay loyal to these races will always be set apart from others ...

... no man nor group of men is responsible for this, it is just the way it is.

You missed one of the most important points I was pointing at, the willingness of a community to "police its' own" is one indication of the health and well being of that community.

The chinese are a prime example! If you do a crime against another race in that community, you might end up dead! They value their honor, dignity and image to the point that members with disregard to its' importance place their very lives at risk. Although the chinese are VERY SLOW to report crimes, they are very swift and stern on keeping their communities clean of such. Indeed, it can be argued that this system works much better than our laws, courts, prisons, etc.

Now, you contrast this against the black communities where you can become a "folk hero" for committing a crime against another race and you can see the dark ramifications!

One of the greatest "secrets" is what happens to white foster children when placed in negro foster homes! Incest is so prevalent in some, if not most of, negro communities that is is accepted without question. Children of other races tend to balk at this and report the crimes!

It isn't "racism" which makes CPS slow to place white children in black foster homes! Indeed, I suspect one major reason that censorship of the internet is so important to public servants is to keep these things hidden, let's hope that is never allowed ...

So as long as any problem existed before he was in office, then he has absolutely NO responsibility for doing nothing about the problem, reducing the problem, or making the problem worse?

Interesting.

So tell me, what exactly is Obama responsible for?

Seems to me all you wish to do is blame everything on Bush and utterly ignore Obama's fuck-ups. I suppose as long as you have a scapegoat then it doesn't matter how much Obama screws up, ignores existing problems, makes existing problems better or worse, it's all because of Bush. Of course, by that logic we can blame everything that happened under Bush on Clinton since the problems of Bush can be traced back to the Clinton administration, and so on and so on and so on.

So, let's just accept you have a double standard in that you won't blame Obama for anything including what he's doing, because according to you it's always someone else's fault.

Oh, and I will also accept that as an admission that you don't consider Obama to be a leader.

I'm not, only blaming him for what happened while he was in office. Which BTW can include solving existing problems, ignoring existing problems, or even making existing problems worse. You on the other hand simply blame everything on Bush because for you Obama isn't a leader, just a stuffed shirt sitting in an office.

>>I've come to realize that you have only one view, Democrat, and by that

You don't need to. You've made it quite plain over time that you will NEVER state a Democrat screwed up and it was his fault alone. Nope, either they don't fuck up, or they only did so because of someone else, usually Republicans.

> That's your straw man.

Nope, just an observation many have made about your partisanship.

> I'm just saying you can't > blame the present economic problems on Democrats.

Sure I can since they were involved in causing the present economic problems.

You wish to deny this because of what you claim is my "strawman", and instead blame absolutely everything on Republicans.

Heck, what is interesting is that DuDu can't blame them at all, at least not without then throwing all the blame on the Republicans in the same sentence.

I usually don't bother to read their typically incest cloned crap, and the less of it I read the better.

You've never demonstrated any such capability of accepting anything that isn't mainstream brown-nose peer approved by your good buddies.
In other words, everything has to be status-quo NASA or otherwise government approved, or else it doesn't matter. So, what's your real point or objective?

Have you ever published or officially supported anything original that wasn't already proven and/or accepted by others?

If it makes you feel any better, there are some copper thieves around here too.And Brass thieves, and Aluminum thieves, and Lead thieves, any kinds of metals they can steal and get some good money.The metal recycling places around here are in cahoots with the cops, if they have a hunch something isn't right, they call the cops.You also have to show legitimate ID and you also get your picture taken.They have Clamped down on metal thieves around here.

There's something wrong with that story. I've never seen copper used for overhead distribution. It's the weight, cost and lack of tensile strength. Steel or alloyed aluminium or a combination of the two, are really common.

Most of the Two-Wire Overhead Distribution up here is 7-Bare-Wires : 1-Steel-Core with a 6-Wire Aluminum Wrap
-note- Other Covered Wire is usually the same.

A friend and I quit school in 1965 to salvage aluminum in Arizona; plane wrecks in the desert, engine parts, etc. Great fun. Only got shot at a few times.

I've seen medium voltage copper lines overhead. They were everywhere in Houston after a hurricane. Copper every one.

The place where the sun rises and sets varies with the time of year and what latitude you are on.

Another phenomena noticed by Eskimos (Inuit) elders has been a movement in the rise and set locations at the same time of year. It's varied by some noticeable number of degrees in the last fifty years.

That could be explained by athmospheric density changing, due to water vapour, co2 and pollution. Those things make the light bend differently.

Houston after a hurricane. Copper every one.

---

My stepdad (a real winner... ) used to go around central Utah in the mid 60's with a buddy of his and steal copper from the overhead lines. I think one night he came home with about half a mile of wire to burn and sell (copper ran about 65 cents a pound at the time, IIRC). He also raided a closed down mine once. Used to have an old steel washer tub in the back yard where he'd burn the insulation off.

He was a Marine.... so much for honor, huh?

That could be explained by athmospheric density changing, due to water
vapour, co2 and pollution. Those things make the light bend differently.

Atmospheric bending can really mess with your mind. Once, on a trip back up from S. of Salem.

Looka here ilk, the two tall windows in my living room face West, each one of those windows have adjustable wooden slats/blinds on them.The Sun used to be setting right in between those two windows.Around sevenish PM the Sun is shining directly through a gap in one of those blinds, directly into my eyes, I drape a shirt over that gap untill the Sun goes down enough so that it isn't shining through that gap.The Sun didn't used to be shining through that gap.Atmospheric conditions isn't causing that.

I do, I had one custom made, but even it can't follow the Guthballian dialect of Babbleloonian very well. It gets all confused, and says, "Over limits, please edit and retry" all the time. Once in a while though, Brad's ravings aren't quite so far out, and the ring can actually figure out what he's going on about. Not that it's much help.

Weird, but then, some do seem to agree with you ... that there have been unreported, or at least under reported, changes.

With my trust in main scream news being nonexistent, who knows?

http://www.divulgence.net/

http://theintelhub.com/2011/06/10/has-the-earth-shifted/http://www.livescience.com/10417-strange-claim-sun-rose-2-days-early-greenland.html

AND, this:
"An increasing number of people around the world have witnessed amazing changes in the location of Sun rise and set in summer and winter. Apparently this is being caused by the earth moving below the old ecliptic plane in summer and above it in winter! The moon is also playing rodeo all over the skyï¿½.and the media says nothing."

FROM HERE:
http://www.conspiracy-truths.com/2010/10/huge-media-blackout-regarding-earth-and-moon-orbital-changes/

AND, HERE IS ONE THAT SAYS IT IS ALL IN THE OBSERVERS HEAD:
http://www.uwgb.edu/dutchs/PSEUDOSC/49Degrees.HTM

Who really knows, from the examples you have seen here, with the insane posters, some will deny evidence and hard proofs no matter what. I suspect whatever is affecting their mental conditions and promoting such insane behaviors may be wide spread ... but, nothing to do now but watch, wait and see ...

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

A) No man alive can foresee whether there will be or not a new Little Ice Age . These observations take centuries to compile . B) 2000-3000-4000 years ago the weather in general was slightly warmer (!) than today ,at least in the original Cradles of Civilization e.g. the Mediterranean basin . D) Any physical event on the Sun always had some impact upon the Earth, whether we like it or accept it or do not . E) The fact that the total poulation is much higher today , than in the 17th century is the proof that : human life longevity is much greater due to the advances in science AND technology , wars were implemented as a constant tool of resolving nearly ANY minor differences , the famines of the past were MUCH greater and longer than we can imagine . On the subject of wars , for instance , the Thirty Years War in Europe wiped out entire regions , some areas lost 50% of the population or more . Talk about the 'good old days' . . .

You are kidding, right?

I bought an old manufacturing plant for the property. In the buildings there was a lot of copper, brass, aluminum scrap, etc. The grand kids got busy and picked out all the copper wire, fittings, pipe, etc. and took it to the scrap yard where they got somewhere close to 3 bucks a pound ... if you were to buy it, you'd pay more!

Antioch is only about 30 - 40 miles from me ...

Just before moving to Korea, I lived in Stockton, just a couple blocks off March Ln. Trying to remember the street, but it was in a bunch of apartments. If I looked out my window in the general direction of Lodi, the whole area was Little Asia (Thai, Korean, Chinese, Vietnamese, Laotian). Not sure where that Super Wally World you refer to is. Perhaps they hadn't built it yet 12 years ago? My memory is getting really bad anymore...

Cool Hand Luke movie was filmed near Stockton,California.They trucked in truckloads of Moss from Louisiana to put on some trees near Stockton.They wanted to make that area look like Georgia.

I used to email chat back and forth with a woman in Stockton,Australia, about ten - eleven years ago, and a married woman in Sydney,Australia about nine years ago.

Paul Gallo was talking this morning (on his Super Talk Missy Sippy radio talk show) about the American Pickers (the History channel) came to the radio museum in Clarksdale,Mississippi, old radios and one arm bandits machines and pinball machines.

I Literally Can NOT Stand those two American Pickers dudes at all!, PERIOD!
They WILL Stay Far Away from my old radios and junk, PERIOD!
In Fact, I wouldn't sell them the sweat off of my balls!

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Precession#Astronomy

Axial precession is the movement of the rotational axis of an astronomical body, whereby the axis slowly traces out a cone. In the case of Earth, this type of precession is also known as the precession of the equinoxes or precession of the equator. Earth goes through one such complete precessional cycle in a period of approximately 26,000 years, during which the positions of stars as measured in the equatorial coordinate system will slowly change; the change is due to the change of the coordinates. Over this cycle, Earth's north axial pole moves from where it is now, within 1ï¿½ of Polaris, in a circle around the ecliptic pole, with an angular radius of about 23.5 degrees (or approximately 23 degrees 27 arcminutes [2]). The shift is 1 degree in 72 years, where the angle is taken from the observer, not from the center of the circle.

3223 East Hammer Lane, Stockton, CA

punched into google maps, should show you the exact position. It would not have been built, you are correct, it is only a handful of years old, although the older walmart it replaced, just across hammer lane, diagonally, might have been, not sure ... they have been trying to put a super wally world in Lodi, for years now, the people there have resisted it -- kinda silly really, as the indians from mexico are a real problem there, don't see how a super walmart is going to attract that many more problems there!

Although you can still find pockets of vietnamese/cambodians about, they tend to run prostitution out of beauty salons and drugs. They seem to have slowed down on ripping up the housings flooring and planting plants on the dirt floors, defecating/urinating in their yards, etc. It is a mystery where they all work, or even if they do? Asian gangs battle the negro and indian (mexican) gangs for turf, this no longer is even considered mentioning, in the paper, anymore, as you never see it in print, although if forced out at night, medical clinic, craving for some food, etc., you see them about ...

Stockton has been hit VERY HARD with both legal and illegal aliens, it has not had a good effect on it. This is as close to a 3rd world country on American soil that I have ever seen, although I have seen very bad areas down south, also. And, along the borders of the border states, it can be much more dangerous, still, at night, it is unsafe to travel most areas of the city here, at least without a weapon.

Such things as purse snatching, muggings, car thefts, etc. fail to hit the paper, you just see or hear about the after effects at you go about the city and chat with victims ... I think this is very dangerous. As, you meet people who have moved here, they you see them and they are leaving/moving because of some element victimizing them, etc.

Most residents here have just "become numb" to the worsening problems, just like that proverbial "frog in the pan of boiling water", but newbies who are stupid enough to move here, end up being shocked when they have been here to realize the underlying conditions.

I am sure there are as bad as areas around California, but living on the outskirts, and having lived within the city boundaries, I have see the problems develop over the years ... the city planners and real estate agents/brokers keep attempting to find new ways to hide all of this, deny all of this, and increase property value and people to come to stockton -- it can be quite funny to watch, if you can ignore the dangers it poses to families ... heck, who knows, Korea might be a safer place to live!

New Insights on How Solar Minimums Affect Earth
Jet Propulsion Laboratory
June 14, 2011

Since 1611, humans have recorded the comings and goings of black spots on the sun. The number of these sunspots waxes and wanes over approximately an 11-year cycle -- more sunspots generally mean more activity and eruptions on the sun and vice versa. The number of sunspots can change from cycle to cycle, and 2008 saw the longest and weakest solar minimum since scientists have been monitoring the sun with space-based instruments.

Observations have shown, however, that magnetic effects on Earth due to the sun, effects that cause the aurora to appear, did not go down in synch with the cycle of low magnetism on the sun. Now, a paper in Annales Geophysicae that appeared on May 16, 2011 reports that these effects on Earth did in fact reach a minimum -- indeed they attained their lowest levels of the century -- but some eight months later. The scientists believe that factors in the speed of the solar wind, and the strength and direction of the magnetic fields embedded within it, helped produce this anomalous low.

"Historically, the solar minimum is defined by sunspot number," says space weather scientist Bruce Tsurutani at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who is first author on the paper. "Based on that, 2008 was identified as the period of solar minimum. But the geomagnetic effects on Earth reached their minimum quite some time later, in 2009. So we decided to look at what caused the geomagnetic minimum."

Geomagnetic effects basically amount to any magnetic changes on Earth due to the sun, and they're measured by magnetometer readings on the surface of the Earth. Such effects are usually harmless, with the only obvious sign of their presence being the appearance of auroras near the poles. However, in extreme cases, they can cause power grid failures on Earth or induce dangerous currents in long pipelines, so it is valuable to know how the geomagnetic effects vary with the sun.

Three things help determine how much energy from the sun is transferred to Earth's magnetosphere from the solar wind: the speed of the solar wind, the strength of the magnetic field outside Earth's bounds (known as the interplanetary magnetic field) and which direction it is pointing, since a large southward component is necessary to connect successfully to Earth's magnetosphere and transfer energy. The team -- which also included Walter Gonzalez and Ezequiel Echer of the Brazilian National Institute for Space Research in SÃ£o JosÃ© dos Campos, Brazil -- examined each component in turn.

First, the researchers noted that in 2008 and 2009, the interplanetary magnetic field was the lowest it had been in the history of the space age. This was an obvious contribution to the geomagnetic minimum. But since the geomagnetic effects didn't drop in 2008, it could not be the only factor.

To examine the speed of the solar wind, they turned to NASA's Advanced Composition Explorer (ACE), which is in interplanetary space outside the Earth's magnetosphere, approximately 1 million miles toward the sun. The ACE data showed that the speed of the solar wind stayed high during the sunspot minimum. Only later did it begin a steady decline, correlating to the timing of the decline in geomagnetic effects.

The next step was to understand what caused this decrease. The team found a culprit in something called coronal holes. Coronal holes are darker, colder areas within the sun's outer atmosphere. Fast solar wind shoots out the center of coronal holes at speeds up to 500 miles per second, but wind flowing out of the sides slows down as it expands into space.

"Usually, at solar minimum, the coronal holes are at the sun's poles," says Giuliana de Toma, a solar scientist at the National Center for Atmospheric Research whose research on this topic helped provide insight for this paper. "Therefore, Earth receives wind from only the edges of these holes, and it's not very fast. But in 2007 and 2008, the coronal holes were not confined to the poles as normal."

Those coronal holes lingered at low latitudes to the end of 2008. Consequently, the center of the holes stayed firmly pointed towards Earth, sending fast solar wind in Earth's direction. Only as they finally appeared closer to the poles in 2009 did the speed of the solar wind at Earth begin to slow down. And, of course, the geomagnetic effects and sightings of the aurora along with it.

Coronal holes seem to be responsible for minimizing the southward direction of the interplanetary magnetic field as well. The solar wind's magnetic fields oscillate on the journey from the sun to Earth. These fluctuations are known as AlfvÃ©n waves. The wind coming out of the centers of the coronal holes has large fluctuations, meaning that the southward magnetic component â□□ like that in all the directions -- is fairly large. The wind that comes from the edges, however, has smaller fluctuations, and comparably smaller southward components. So, once again, coronal holes at lower latitudes would have a better chance of connecting with Earth's magnetosphere and causing geomagnetic effects, while mid-latitude holes would be less effective.

Working together, these three factors -- low interplanetary magnetic field strength, combined with slower solar wind speed and smaller magnetic fluctuations due to coronal hole placement -- create the perfect environment for a geomagnetic minimum.

Knowing what situations cause and suppress intense geomagnetic activity on Earth is a step toward better predicting when such events might happen. To do so well, Tsurutani points out, requires focusing on the tight connection between such effects and the complex physics of the sun. "It's important to understand all of these features better," he says. "To understand what causes low interplanetary magnetic fields and what causes coronal holes in general. This is all part of the solar cycle. And all part of what causes effects on Earth."

1) you have FAILED in lo these many years to NAME ONE THING in NIST that is erroneous. As you and I both know, you can't and you won't because of course NIST has been fully proven thoroughly and completely

Limprod here are three notorious lies by NIST

The NIST story!

(1)NIST first notorius lie was Floride prevents tooth decay. They were CREATED by the government to hide the adverse affects of Hitlers mind altering Floride experiments on the human nervous System headed by Col Stafford Warren(Project F) they used the name Bureau of Standards back then,after the lawsuits started pouring in they changed their name.

(2)Notorious lie number two was they said JFK was killed by a lone assasin to cover up the governments connection!

They called that panel of lie spewers the WARREN COMMISSION as a joke on society since it worked soo good selling floride was good to drink!

(3)After changing their name to National Institute of Standards and Technology their last notorios lie was the US Government was not connected to the 911 fiasco!

This is a good read about the many lies of NIST the word National is a dead givaway to Government connected WAR MONGARS and genocide on its own people to still oil from other countries!

http://www.gnosticliberationfront.com/toxic_secrets_fluoride_and_a_bomb_program.htm

They did not make a TYPO in their lie telling in none of their reports!

Yep. In fact, before I retired I developed several things that's what engineering is all about.

And I'm still waiting for that info from you.

Scary thing is, most stockton natives are pretty ho-hum about such going ons ... and a high percentage of teens know they have no future in the course this government has planned and the way the economy is going -- and no apparent way to change these courses ...

Something needs to come along which will completely do 180 degree turn about or there is no good in the futures picture to look at ...

Well said.

You only need to look at mexico to see what a country governed by indians of spanish influence would look like.

Africa is a prime example of what a land governed by negros would look like.

I don't think the indians care for the way they run their country, nor the negros care for the way their country of africa is ran ...

They will get what they deserve, in the end, one way or another ...

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Hey, that is good reason to totally ignore the law, ain't it?

I mean, a bunch of jungle bunnies running wild in the streets with saturday night specials, raping women, smash and grabbing businesses, committing arson, etc.

Every American Patriot can certainly understand that argument ... we ABSOLUTELY want a nation living under the threat of negro terrorism, right?

The bushkultie doesn't realize it.

One of the most important things to know about weapons is when not to use them.

Bush and Cheney never learned that.

"congratulations for your willingness to look at the proof about 9-11"

http://www.911proof.com/

Notice that the bushkultie won't be able to address
any of the facts from the above site at all.

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

You always do.

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their offshore accounts.

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

"...incompetence cannot explain the suppression of efforts to prevent the attacks."

Well this is EXACTLY what happened. The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie has only lies.

It's obvious.

Yet the bushkultie isn't permitted to consider it.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to think.

The official story of 9/11 is a fabrication that would never hold up in court.

The bushkultie can't recognize much less understand them,
but they remain nonetheless.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal
Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,

If it's electronic, it's no election.

Make a note of that.

It's important.

The bushkultie doesn't know that.

It will continue to get hotter in most "temperate" places. As long as the ocean currents don't change California is downstream from Alaska.
Our 60 degree seawater keeps it tolerable usually. It does get to 118

Missed the part about "before I retired I developed several things that weren't 'already proven and/or accepted by others'; that's what engineering is all about.", did you? No surprise; you seem to ignore anything which doesn't support your personal agenda; you're identical to many other loons in this way.

And I'm still waiting for those definitions you refuse to provide:

"FUD" or "FUD-master"
"ZNR"
"redneck" (your personal definition, that is; I know the actual meaning).

Have fun tapdancing around them again.

So you still can't admit to anything that was all you, or even tell us the date and place of whatever you were specifically any part of.

Working for the government or even privet industry that essentially provides everything and otherwise pays for everything and thereby owns all the rights to everything you've ever accomplished is not hardly the same thing as accomplishing anything on your own, now is it.

1812. Any antenne gurus here ???

Hiya...

Now that I've decided on what to get for my first ham radio, (TS-590s) I'm moving on to deciding on an antenna.

The goal will be DX'ing the ham bands with phone and eventually CW. I'm looking for an antenna set up that will work on 10 to 80 meters. Of course, multiple specific antennas would be an ideal, but that is not in the cards.

I've had a few options in mind. All of course, would be coupled with an antenna tuner if the internal auto tuner on the radio cold not do the job.

1. Set up a butternut HF9V on a roof mount approx 30-35 feet above the ground with tuned radials. The problem being, the footprint of my roof is only 35' x 35'. With the antenna set up in the center of the roof, there wlll be only a max of 17" to string the radials outward. I'd have to "snake" them in order to fit and figure out how to secure them. Another draw back is that verticles tend to be more noisey.

2. Set up a GAP Titan on a roof mount approx 30-35 feet up. No radials needed with that antenna, but I have been told/read that unless perfectly assembled, they dont work as advertised. Again... Vertile can be a noisy antenna.

3. Set up a Chameleon V11 or v12 verticle rigid diepole on a non conductive mast mounted to brackets on the side of the house with the feed point of the antenna being about 25 to 30 feet high. This antenna is advertised as a dipole and does not need any radial set up. There have only been a few reviews of this antenna. All are very favorable, but is it too good to be true ??? A verticle working with no radials ???

4. Go with a wire antenna. I had in mind using the Buckmaster off center fed diepole. The eight band 300 watt version has two pole lenghts of 90' and 180' respectively. I had in mind hooking the center feed point to the apex hight of the side of my house to a non conductive hook i can scew in up there. There is enough lenght of space on my lot to let both the long and short pole ends to extend out and down in and inverted V. I'd secure the pole ends to the ground with plastic cord and non conductive ground spikes so that the receiving wire was still elevated 8 to 10" above the ground. The feed line would not go straight down from the apex. Since the top of the roof is right where it would be secored, I'd pull it right on to the roof, run it across the house down the other side and right into the shack on the top floor of the other side of the house where the shack is. The upside... No ground or radials needed, no expensive or troublesome set up and I can take the thing down in fifteen minutes with no problems at all. Just a small hook left in the side of the house. It wuld also be a more "quite" antenna vs. a verticle like the ones mentioned above. The down side... It would radiate well east and west, but not well off the poles north and south.

Well... That's about it...

Any comments or suggestions would be appreciated.

Thanx in advance.

Michael

You silly FUD-masters are always having such problems decoding our dyslexic and other skillfully encrypted stuff. That must be why MI6 and Qinetiq have to tell you brown-nosed clowns exactly how to act/react, what to believe, how to think and of course what to say.

"privet" is a secret code word to have you FUD-masters executed on site. Sorry about that, it just slipped out.

OK if we buy that "Bush and Cheney are Traitors

...then... We Must Reasonably Conclude :

* That Obama Continuing The Bush/Cheney Wars and even Starting New Wars for Oil

* That Obama Killing Osama bin-Laden and many other Al CIAda Terrorists like Bush/Cheney as Part of the 9/11 Was An Inside Job 'clique/regime'

The Butternut is a good antenna. You can let the radials hang over the edge of the roof; 22 or 24 gauge will work just fine and tend to make them more "invisible". Also, you can "snake" them. It's not too critical. Don't worry about the noise.

I don't know anything about this antenna; you are basically on your own. If it is indeed advertised as a dipole, that would explain why you don't need any radials. With the Butternut and other "conventional" verticals, the vertical portion is one half of a dipole and the radials are the other half.

The best wire antenna you can put up is a center fed dipole of any length, usually at least a quarter wave on the lowest band you intend to operate on and fed with 450 or 600 ohm ladder line. The good news is that it is easily built, inexpensive, all band. The bad news is you need a "real" balanced antenna tuner like the Johnson Matchbox, either the low or high power version. BTW, yes it is very slightly directional but no where near as bad as yo think.

If you don't want a tuner, you can try what is known as a "fan dipole".
This is a conventional dipole for each band you want to operate but fed with a single 50 ohm coax. Works fine w/o a tuner but can be a little visually messy, especially if you include the WARC bands.

Have you read any of his books? If you haven't, one of them is online, and it's free (others are too, but they're illicit. This one is approved). Read Chapter One and then see what you think:

Maybe you can help explain why we didn't have wild inflation in the late '80s, or a war with Europe in the mid-'90s, like he predicted. d8-)

Although I can't speak for what your dollars are worth, mine were worth 4.3
times more in Jan. 1975 than in May 2011.

Of course, I think I had a lot less than 1/12th of them then than I have now.

BTW, the time during which Ron Paul said we were going to have "raging inflation," the second half of the '80s, we had just over 4% inflation per year. He was comparing it with a time a few years earlier than his speech, when it was running at 10%. He expected it to be much higher than that.

'Screwed that one up pretty good. That's because he's mesmirized by the Austrian School economic quacks.

I really like Ron Paul. He's personable, smart, responsible, and courageous. What he is NOT is sensible. His tomes on economics are a farce. We can't tolerate any more economic voodoo like the nonsense that the Austrians push. We had enough of that under three presidents.

Yes, I should have added that I like his independence, too. We need a few Ron Pauls, just to question the conventional wisdom -- in Congress.

In stockton,ca, when then mention race or show pics/videos, it is blacks and indians from mexico (and unknown parts.)

There is no new construction in the area which doesn't have security on the premises just to keep the copper and building materials from being stolen while the buildings are under construction.

You even see whole buildings, both residential and commercial, being completely gutted ... a bank foreclosure means that building is going to mess, and quickly! I think the crooks use the foreclosure notices as shopping lists!

This is probably a bunch of the new jobs, besides mcdonalds, where obama is claiming to have created new jobs -- ROFLOL!

> Yes, he

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

Shooting only the republicrats would do little good, you would be leaving half the crooks, you'd have to get the democans, and to be a permanent cure, you'd have to get the puppet masters behind them!

Sounds to me like you are presupposing we allow the crooks to keep the ill gotten gains? Not so, honest public servants and American citizens will pursue them anywhere they choose to hide in the world ... much like the Israelis pursuit of nazi criminals ... relentlessly.

I think we can be kept being led on wild goose chases for the rest of our lives, and they our childrens' children being so led ...

It it time to deal with these criminal public servants who are over these criminals who have infiltrated all our government offices and who keep acting in our worst interests. We need to start at the top, with obama and work our way down, replacing them all as we imprison the crooks who have stood behind them, and had them working for them ... the NWO, rich-elite, corporate interests, etc.

It is hardly too strong to say that the Constitution was made to guard the people against the dangers of good intentions. There are men in all ages who mean to govern well, but They mean to govern. They promise to be good masters, but they mean to be masters. Daniel Webster

A gallon of gas in 1975: $0.57. Twelve times that would be $6.84.

A gallon of milk in 1975 was $1.57. Twelve times that would be $18.84.

It must be real expensive where you live. d8-)

I pay $3.50 for gas and $3.99 for milk. I moved into my present house in 1978; property taxes are about 4.1 times as much now as then.

I guess so, back then I paid ~100.00 a month for a two bedroom apt, my son now pays 1,100 for about the same, only the electric/water/garbage was included in my apt, it is not in my sons.

When I did pay electric is was 0.08 cents a KW/h, now my bill is 12 cents a kw/hr.

Water wasn't metered in my area back then, now my water bill is ~50.00 a month.

Back then, all my retirement was paid by employers, today my sons is matched equally by his employer.

Back then all my medical and drugs were covered under my plan, paid for by my employer, my sons contribution to his plan is 50% and he must pay for all his drugs.

I think the area you lived in back then, and now do must be something special ...

Just might be the case, once they are charged with treason, arrested, tried and the extent of their crimes comes out, that might be the fitting punishments which are arrived at ... who knows until we get there?

But, you still have many arguing things are really not that bad ... we are first going to have to get more in agreement that things really are that bad ... one positive thing is, it is getting there, more come on board each and everyday!

They are just beginning with cuts to bring about a balanced budget and they are already cutting the poor, the old, necessary police and fire, etc., while the rich roll on ... the obvious dissatisfaction this is going to cause is only beginning.

The suffering has to increase to a level where enough are in a bind that mere threats and punishments are not enough to keep the peasants in line ... this is the calm before the storm.

I suppose then you should have a real issue with the $6.4 Billion missing

And whom will do the judging, if you don't trust anyone doing it presently?
Perhaps people of like mind who have already made up their minds about their guilt? That's not justice, it's mob rule. What you are advocating is just that, mob rule. Our system, like any other designed by man, is far from perfect, but for the moment it's the best we've got.

For the record, there is no such thing as a government of any kind (verily, even a human being) that cannot be corrupted. All we can do is vote out the ones we don't like and hope the next bunch are better. We must also remember that the ones we do not like, if they have made it into office, are obviously ones that the majority of voters DO or DID like. For anyone to advocate the violent overthrow of a duly elected official at any level is guilty of at the very least sedition and possibly even treason. Our one and only legitimate weapon IS the VOTE. The only thing that can possibly change this is if the government wholesale removes our constitutional rights by dissolution or suspension of the Constitution. Anything else is considered a minority attempting to rule over the majority.

If you are referring to the money "lost" in Iraq, that money came up "missing" years before Obama was even elected.. would be really difficult to blame on him if that's the case.

The evidence of guilt? We are drowning in it, the rich have gotten richer, or at least treading water, the big banks and wall street have been saved the the "TRILLION(S) DOLLAR BAIL OUT!"

If that fails to prove who is being "saved" here, then forget it ... nothing will.

I have always said, "A peaceful revolution if possible, but anyway possible if not."

The missing billions/trillions of the pentagon/bankster/wall-street monies didn't just evaporate. The record where all the public/private monies have been stolen off to still exist, the people who know about them still exist, when congress asks, the feds refuse to tell, pentagon claims the records are "missing."

The plane striking the pentagon might have been used as an excuse for the missing records, the controlled demolition might be being claimed to have destroyed the records in building 7 of the WTC. But, there are other records, their are people around and in the fed who know where these monies went, there are still people in the pentagon and government who know where this money went.

You have to do, as you always have to do, pick up the criminals you do know, hold their feet to the fire and get them to tell on the others. You have to turn lose independent investigators to filter and sift through the facts and people who do know know ...

But first you have to start ... when you see a full audit of the fed going on, when you see members of the fed arrested and threatened for their crimes ... when you begin to see these things and more, you will know an honest attempt is going on to find the crooks ... and you will begin to see this criminal mess begin to fall. You will see the criminal-government empire begin to fall apart ...

All we are seeing is business as usual ... until bernanke, paulson, greenspan, bush, cheney, pentagon financial accountants, etc., etc., etc. are held to be accountable ... the efforts are effectively stopped and the criminals operate without fear ...

The question isn't if trillions upon trillions have bee stolen (and the money STILL, VERY MUCH exists in the criminals possessions!), it is simply who has stolen these monies, benefited and become ungodly rich and wealthy -- I think we can find that very easily, once the criminals are no longer being protected.

Yes, as per usual corrupt hedge funds fits your closed mindset that's clearly pro-Jewish regardless of the mostly negative consequences.
You are in FUD-master heaven, which by the way Jews do not believe in because there's no such thing as any Jewish or Zionist hell, so everyone gets to move on up the ladder regardless of their actions, but only as long as they are Jewish and/or an essential minion that works on their behalf.

Obviously you believe that each and every government agency and their many thousand contractors always tell us the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and otherwise at the very least Hitler would have to agree with you.

NINE-ELEVEN - NEVER AGAIN!

To understand the point I wish to make, let's assume that an obviously alien creature was walking peacefully down the street, and observe peoples' reactions to it.

Some would simply not see it! Their brains would reject as IMPOSSIBLE what their eyes tell them, and block out their awareness of the unearthly creature.

Some might stare, perhaps be shocked or frightened, but then go on, rationalizing that they only saw someone in costume, or that they had indulged too heavily at last night's party and were seeing things. They would tell no one what they saw for fear of being called crazy. They would even, in defense of their own rationalization, label other people that reported such a sighting crazy. This is the psychological phenomenon of DENIAL.

Perhaps in fear for their own sanity, deniers condemn as crazy others that claim aliens or whatever to be real. Such assertions are frightening because they violate their sense of reality - "only KOOKS believe in aliens!" Thus people tend to reject as unreal what is not comfortable for them to accept, and likewise embrace beliefs that do not hold up to scientific scrutiny but do provide them comfort. You don't believe what you DON'T WANT to believe; denial thus serves to protect the mind from what would be mentally traumatic if accepted.

Some things are simply too horrific, too abominably appalling, too greatly in violation of what we WANT to think or believe, to accept as actual reality - even when they ARE real! "Look; the Emperor wears no clothes," said the child too na�ve to know that such facts are not to be spoken of, nor even acknowledged to oneself.

PSYOPS - definition paraphrased from Wikipedia: Psychological Operations. Techniques used to influence a target audience's value systems, beliefs, emotions, motives, reasoning, or behavior. PSYOPS are used to induce confessions or reinforce attitudes and behaviors favorable to the originator's objectives, and are sometimes combined with black operations or false flag tactics. The phrase is commonly used by governments who wish to avoid the terms propaganda and brainwashing in reference to their own work because those terms have negative connotations. The use of such euphemisms for what is in effect mind control is itself an example of psychological operations, i.e. using psychological techniques to persuade a large number of people to support something they wouldn't normally support or to unquestioningly accept lies.

Obviously, to permit or commit an atrocity on the scale of the 9/11 attacks, and/or to exploit the horror, shock, and fear thus created to influence public opinion and actions, is clearly a PSYOP. The exploitation of the psychological phenomenon of DENIAL is also clearly a PSYOP. Who would want to believe that traitors in our own government would permit, or even perpetrate, such an atrocity on their own people? How much easier it would be to accept the existence of aliens - or fanatical Jihadists!

"But, after all, it is the leaders of the country who determine the policy and it is always a simple matter to drag the people along, whether it is a democracy, or a fascist dictatorship, or a parliament, or a communist dictatorship. Voice or no voice, the people can always be brought to the bidding of the leaders. That is easy. All you have to do is tell them they are being attacked and then denounce the peacemakers for lack of patriotism and exposing the country to danger. It works the same in any country." - Hermann Goering at the Nuremberg Trials.

Now that we understand what PSYOPS are, and the psychological phenomenon of DENIAL, we are in a better position to rationally investigate the true nature and possible sources of the 9/11 attacks.

The UNDENIABLE EVIDENCE of an INSIDE JOB:

BLOWN TO BITS:

The sudden, complete, straight down at near free fall speed collapse of steel framed WTC building 7, which was not touched by the planes, is the SMOKING GUN of the 9/11 conspiracy. The building's minor fires and debris damage could not account for this collapse, which had all the earmarks of controlled demolition by explosives. Videos clearly show this. Such demolitions take many days or weeks to set up - not the few hours between the attacks and the collapse. The explosives therefore had to be put in place BEFOREHAND. This lends credibility to the use of previously placed explosives to bring down the towers as well, which like the badly damaged and fire-gutted Deutchbank building would probably have remained standing.

Propaganda shills, disinformationists, and those in psychological denial still insist the collapse of WTC 7 could not be what it obviously was, and they employ often ludicrous rationalizations and fabrications, elaborate lies, and infantile ad-hominem attacks to defend their indefensible position. The REAL terrorists are desperate to cover up their mass-murderous crime of the century - the permitting if not perpetration of, and subsequent political and economic exploitation of the fully preventable 9/11 disaster. Could Bin Laden have somehow totally incapacitated NORAD - the world's most sophisticated aerospace defense system - on that horrible morning? I don't think so!

There is evidence of an INSIDE JOB even more clear and indisputable than the explosive demolition collapse of building 7 and the standing down of NORAD. Many very small HUMAN BODY FRAGMENTS have been found on the roofs of nearby buildings. These were too far away to be from jumpers from the towers. If the towers simply collapsed from damage and fire alone, what blew these bodies to smithereens and sent the fragments flying for considerable distances? The plane impacts did not have the explosive brisance (shattering force) necessary to do this - only HIGH EXPLOSIVES can blow bodies to tiny bits and throw them such distances.

So - who can credibly account for these body fragments, other than their being the result of high explosives being detonated in the towers?

SIMPLE PHYSICS EXPOSES THE BIG 9/11 LIE - GOVERNMENT BUILDING COLLAPSE EXPLANATION FAILS REALITY CHECK

On September 11, 2001, the world watched in horror as the World TradeCenter (WTC) Twin Towers collapsed, killing thousands of innocent people. Videos of the collapses were replayed ad nauseam on TV for days. About 5 hours after the towers fell, WTC building 7 also collapsed suddenly, completely, and straight down at near free-fall speed. This steel-framed building was not touched by the planes that struck the towers, and had sustained relatively minor debris damage and small fires. Nearby buildings far more heavily damaged remained standing.

In June 2005, in an apparent response to an article by Morgan Reynolds, former CIA Director and current Secretary of Defense Robert Gates stated, "The American people know what they saw with their own eyes on September11, 2001. To suggest any kind of government conspiracy in the events of that day goes beyond the pale."

We will prove here, with scientific rigor, that it's the government's tale that's "beyond the pale!"

Did most of the American people really understand the unprecedented phenomena they had witnessed? Could a lack of knowledge of physics, and the emotional shock of this mass-murderous "terrorist attack" have stymied objective thinking and led to the blind acceptance of authoritarian assertions?

The government and the media TOLD US what we saw. The government told us that we had witnessed a "gravitational" collapse; what is now referred to as a "pancake collapse". According to the government claims, the plane crashes and subsequent kerosene (like lamp oil - jet fuel is NOT exotic) fires heated the UL-certified structural steel to the point where it was significantly weakened, which is very difficult to believe, never mind repeat in an experiment. Even with massive fires that incinerate everything else, the steel frames of such buildings generally remain standing.

According to the "pancake theory", this purported (all physical evidence was quickly and illegally destroyed) weakening supposedly caused part of the tower to collapse downward onto the rest of the tower, which, we've been repeatedly told, somehow resulted in a chain reaction of the lower floors sequentially, one at a time, yielding to the weight falling from above.

There are some problems with that theory - it does not fit the observed facts

* It cannot account for the total failure of the immense vertical steelcore columns - as if they were there one moment and gone the next.

* The collapse times were near free-fall, far too rapid to be due to gravity alone. This article focuses on the latter of these two discrepancies.

Those that concocted the "pancake theory" made a fatal error - they didn't check their story against the inviolate laws of physics! This is easy to do, even without any physical evidence to examine. We can test that incredible pancake tale using basic high-school physics. Let's do that - use a simple, unassailable, incontrovertible conservation-of-energy analysis to perform a reality check that establishes once and for all that the government, and such government story backers as PBS, Popular Mechanics, and Scientific American have falsified the true nature of the 9/11 disaster.

How Gravity Acts:

Sir Isaac Newton noticed that apples fell from trees. Others had also noticed this, but none had ever devised a theory of gravity from the observation. Over the years, mankind has learned that the force ofgravity at and near Earth's surface produces an acceleration of known constant magnitude. That doesn't mean we know HOW it works, or WHY, but we have become able to predict its effects with a high degree of precision and certainty - gravity has always had the same, predictable, effect.

Galileo Galilei used the leaning tower of Pisa to demonstrate that a large ball and a small one (of lesser mass) fell (accelerated downward) at the same rate. Prior to Galileo, people had just assumed that heavier objects fall faster, much the way they had assumed the Earth was flat.

So while an object of greater mass will exert more force (its weight) upon anything supporting it against gravity's pull, it does not experience any greater acceleration when gravity's pull is not opposed - when it is falling. Earth's gravity at and near the surface of the planet can only accelerate objects downward at one known, constant rate: 32 feet persecond for each second of free fall. As Galileo demonstrated centuries ago, heavier objects are not accelerated any quicker than are lighter objects.

So Earth's gravity produces a downward acceleration of 32 feet per second per second. This means that an object, after falling one second, will be falling at a speed of 32 ft/sec. After the 2nd second, it will be falling at 64 ft/sec. After the 3rd second, it will be falling at 96 ft/sec., and so on.

Further, since gravity's acceleration is constant, and an object isfalling at 32 ft/sec after one second has elapsed, we know that it has averaged 16 ft/sec for the entire distance. Thus after one second, the object has fallen 16 feet.

Scientists have derived simple free-fall equations that can be used to harness this knowledge mathematically. These equations can be found inany high-school physics book

* Falling velocity = acceleration of gravity x time. (V = G x T)
And
* Distance fallen = 1/2 x acceleration of gravity x time squared. (D =1/2 x G x T x T)

So if we want to know how far an object has free-fallen after 3 seconds

Distance = 1/2 x 32 x 9 = 144 feet

So after 3 seconds in Earth's gravity, an object will have fallen 144 feet and will be falling at 96 ft/sec.

Checking Our Work:

We've just solved a simple physics problem. Now let's check our work,using conservation of energy.

We know that energy can neither be created nor destroyed - it merely changes form. If we take the potential (in this case chemical, molecular) energyin a barrel of oil and burn it, it changes to heat energy. When we burn gasoline in our car's engine, we get kinetic (motional) energy, plus some heat, as an engine is not 100% efficient. When we use our car's brakes to bleed off some of that kinetic energy (slow down), that energy isconverted into heat (the brakes get hot). Explosives convert potential energy [molecular or atomic] to kinetic energy (explosive force) quickly enough to shatter or even pulverize concrete.

In the case of the free-falling object, the two kinds of energy we are concerned with are kinetic energy and potential energy. Examples of potential (gravitational) energy are the energy available from water stored up high in a water tower, or a boulder perched atop a hill. If whateveris holding it up there is removed, it will fall under the influence of gravity's pull. As it accelerates downward, the potential energy is converted to the kinetic energy of the object's motion.

So, as an object falls, it changes its potential energy into kinetic energy.

The equation for potential energy is
* Potential Energy = Mass (or weight) x Gravity x Height. (PE = M x G xH)

The equation for kinetic energy is
* Kinetic Energy = 1/2 x Mass x Velocity squared. (KE = 1/2 x M x V x V)

So let's just say, for the sake of simplicity, that our falling object hasa mass of 1. (Remember, the object's mass will affect its energy, and its momentum, but not its rate of free-fall.)

The potential energy given up by falling 3 seconds (144 ft) is: 1 x 32x144 = 4608

The kinetic energy gained after falling 3 seconds is 1/2 x 1 x 96 squared =1/2 x 9216 = 4608

So, the available potential energy was converted into kinetic energy.Seeing that energy was, in fact, conserved is how we know that the answer in the simple case above was correct. We've checked our work, using an independent analysis, based upon the sound physical principle of conservation of energy. Now, and only now, we can be certain that our answer was correct.

One Little Complication - the effect of air resistance

The free-fall equations above reflect a perfect, frictionless world. They perfectly predict the behavior of falling bodies in a vacuum. In fact, you may have seen a science class demonstration in which the air is pumped out of a tube and then a feather will fall, in that vacuum, just as fast as will a solid metal ball.

That's how parachutes work: much of the falling object's potential energy gets expended doing the work of pushing a lot of air out of the way inorder for the object to fall. As a result, not all of the gravitational potential energy can go towards accelerating the object downward at gravity's rate of 32 ft/sec/sec.

In other words, only when there is zero frictional resistance can any falling object's potential energy be completely converted into kinetic energy. Anything that resists a falling object's downward velocity reduces its acceleration from the maximum gravitational acceleration of 32 feet per second per second, as some of gravity's potential energy is consumed in overcoming frictional resistance.

This explains the phenomena of "terminal velocity". The free-fall equations predict that a falling object's velocity will continue to increase without limit. But in air, once a falling object reaches a certain speed, its propensity to fall will be matched by the air's resistance to the fall.At that point the object will continue to fall, but its speed will no longer increase over time. Another way of looking at it is this: gravity's incessant force produces a downward acceleration, but friction with theair creates an upward force and thus an upward acceleration. When falling at terminal velocity, the acceleration downward equals the accelerationupward, they cancel each other out, and a constant downward velocity ismaintained.

Thus the parachute, with its high air friction resistance, allows theperson attached to it to float to earth unharmed.

A Quick Recap:

Earth's gravity causes objects to fall, and they fall according to precise physical equations. The equations assume no air or other resistance. Any resistance at all will cause the object to fall less rapidly than it would without that resistance. If a falling object is affected by airresistance it falls slower than it would if free-falling, and it will take longer to fall a given distance.

Free-fall From WTC Building Heights

The towers were 1350 and 1360 feet tall; average = 1355 feet. Let's start by using our free-fall equation to see how long it should take an objectto free-fall from the towers' height.

Distance = 1/2 x Gravity x Time squared. (D = 1/2 x G x T x T)

With a little basic algebra, we solve the equation for the fall time,T:

2 x Distance = Gravity x Time(squared) (2 x D = G x T x T)
Time squared = (2 x Distance) / Gravity (T x T = 2 x D / G)
Time squared = 2 x 1355 / 32 = 84.7 (T = square root of (2 x D / G))
Time = 9.2

So our equation tells us that it takes 9.2 seconds to free-fall to the ground from the height of the WTC towers.

Using our simpler equation, V = G x T, we can see that at 9.2 seconds, the free-falling object's velocity must be about 295 ft/sec, which is justover 200 mph.

But that can only occur IN A VACUUM.

Since the WTC was in Earth's atmosphere at sea level, you might be able to imagine how much air resistance that represents. Think about putting your arm out the window of a car moving even half that fast! Most free-falling objects reach their terminal velocity long before they reach 200 mph. For example, the terminal velocity of a free-falling human body is around 120 mph. The terminal velocity of a free-falling cat is around 60 mph.

Therefore, it is clear that air resistance alone will make it take longer than 9.2 seconds for anything falling from the towers' height to reach the ground.

Observations from 9/11:

On page 305 of the 9/11 Commission Report, we are told, in the government's "complete and final report" on 9/11, that the South Tower collapsed in 10 seconds. Here is the exact quote

"At 9:58:59, the South Tower collapsed in ten seconds". That's the government's official number. With all the videos that show it, they could not lie about this.

But as we've determined above, the FREE-FALL TIME IN A VACUUM is 9.2 seconds, and 10 seconds is an exceptionally short fall time through the air.

This "collapse" was not without far more physical resistance than from the air alone. It proceeded through all the lower stories of the tower. Those undamaged floors below the plane impact zone offered resistance thousands of times greater than that of air. Those lower stories, and the central steel core columns, had successfully supported the mass of the tower for 30 years despite hurricane-force winds and tremors. Air cannot do that.

Can anyone possibly imagine undamaged lower floors getting out of the way of the upper floors as gracefully and relatively without friction as air would? Can anyone possibly imagine the lower stories slowing the fall of the upper floors less than would, say, a parachute?

It is beyond the scope of the simple but uncontested physics here to tell you how long such a collapse should have taken. Would it have taken a minute? Ten minutes? Hard to say, but certainly it would take far more than 10 seconds!

What is certain, beyond any shadow of a doubt, is that the towers could not have collapsed gravitationally, through their intact lower stories, as rapidly as was observed on 9/11. Not even close. This is shown above to be physically impossible!

Not only was tremendous energy expended in causing the observed massive high-speed sideways debris ejections, but virtually all the concrete and glass of the tower was pulverized - actually dissociated is a better word. Never mind what happened to all the supporting steel core columns! The energy requirements to do anything like that, alone, rival the total amount of potential energy that the entire tower had to give. Gravity alone is sufficient to cause some things to fall that far, even through air, in close to the observed 10 second collapse time. But that is without the huge expenditure of energy necessary to pulverize all of that concrete and glass, eject debris, plus cause the steel core columns to effectively disappear. The gravitational potential energy present was certainly not enough to have done all these things at once.

Energy can neither be created nor destroyed; it only changes form. So WHERE DID ALL THAT ADDITIONAL DESTRUCTIVE ENERGY COME FROM?

Conclusions

In order for the towers to have collapsed "gravitationally" in the observed duration, as we've been told over and over again, one or more of the following zany-sounding conditions must have been met

* The undamaged structure below the impact zone offered zero resistance to the collapse.
* The glass and concrete spontaneously disintegrated without any expenditure of energy.
* The massive vertical steel core columns simply vanished, as if by magic.
* On 9/11 alone, in that location alone, gravity was much stronger than gravity.
* On 9/11 alone, in that location alone, energy was not conserved.

None of these laws-of-physics-violating, and thus impossible, conditions can be accounted for by the official government theory of 9/11, nor by any of the subsequent analyses and arguments designed to prop up this official myth of 9/11.

The Bottom Line

The government explanations for the WTC collapses fail the most basic conservation-of-energy reality check. Therefore the government theory is FALSE; it does not fit the observed facts, and the notion of a "pancake collapse" cannot account for what happened. The "pancake collapse" explanation is impossible, and thus absurd. It is A LIE.

It is utterly impossible for a gravitational collapse to proceed so destructively through a path of such great resistance in anywhere near free-fall time. This fact debunks the preposterous contention that theWTC collapses can be blamed solely upon damage resulting from the plane impacts.

The unnaturally short durations of the top-down collapses reveal that the towers did not disintegrate because they were coming down, but rather they came down because something else was causing them to disintegrate.

So, to the extent that people accept the ridiculous "pancake collapse" story, former CIA Director and current Secretary of Defense Gates' other premise, that people know what they saw, is also false. It is left to you to decide if his conclusion, which was based upon clearly incorrect presumptions, is also flawed.

The collapse of WTC building 7, which was NOT hit by any plane, and which also collapsed within a second of free-fall time later that same day, similarly fails the conservation-of-energy analysis. The 9/11 Commission made no attempt to explain it.

Just how and why so many highly-accredited and credentialed people all so miserably failed to check the "pancake collapse" theory, by giving it this basic physics reality check, is beyond the scope of this analysis.

SO - WHO DONE IT??

Any good detective will tell you that the way to find criminals is to investigate those that benefitted, or stood to benefit, from the crime. Surely those that were quickly blamed for this mass-murderous crime of the century - Bin Laden, etc., had evil intentions against America, but could not have done it single-handedly. Just after 9/11 Iraq and Saddam Hussein were implied as guilty in a PSYOP to justify the invasion of Iraq, when in fact they were blameless for 9/11.

Here are some that, under the criteria of the good detective above, must be considered suspects:

Bush, Cheney, and their fellow Republican/neo-conservatives then in power.
Then NYC mayor Rudy Giuliani.
WTC owner/leaseholder Larry Silverstein.
The theocratic nation of Israel.

DEMAND that congress reopen the investigation and bring the real MASS-MURDERERS to justice!

NINE ELEVEN - NEVER AGAIN!

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

I know if you took the minimum wage for 1970 of $1.60 an hour and adjusted it properly for inflation and the devalued dollar it would have to $16.00 or greater to have the same purchasing power ...

http://3950.net/2011/06/liberty-net-june-11-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

N2IRJ has invested in new professional-level preamplifiers and A/D conversion hardware, and the results benefit everyone who listens to the recordings of the Liberty Net we archive here. Enjoy!

Here are a few examples from the hundreds of ideas debated this time on amateur radioï¿½s most exciting net:

ï¿½ A new controversy is brewing about the apparently fake Social Security number that was issued to Obama in, of all places, Connecticut. Another man has been discovered who was issued the same number, which is supposed to be impossible. That man was born in Connecticut but later lived in Hawaii, making his records potentially available to a forger there. (14 minutes)

ï¿½ Now that Alabama has enacted a new law which aims to put a few restrictions on what illegal invaders can do there, how long will it be before boycotts of the state are initiated? (22 minutes)

ï¿½ Rational people, looking objectively at the actual actions of Washingtonï¿½s ï¿½Department of Homeland Security,ï¿½ would have to conclude that the agency itself is a terrorist group. (26 minutes)

ï¿½ The coalition that elected the oligarchï¿½s current figurehead is falling apart: A prominent ï¿½rapperï¿½ has now called Obama ï¿½the biggest terrorist in America.ï¿½ (28 minutes)

ï¿½ When todayï¿½s largely phony presidential candidates show up to ï¿½debateï¿½ on the billionairesï¿½ television networks, few questions of any importance are ever asked. (34 minutes)

ï¿½ Why is it when the super-wealthy convene in Switzerland to discuss their plans for us with senior politicians, the major media networks ignore it, and those who are concerned and want to report on the event are dismissed as ï¿½conspiracy nutsï¿½? (1 hour 14 minutes)

ï¿½ Why is it that almost every elected Democrat and every elected Republican is a warmonger, even those who ran on an anti-war platform? (1 hour 20 minutes)

ï¿½ Now that the New World Order oligarchs have started slaughtering innocents in yet another Muslim country ï¿½ is it the fifth or the sixth? ï¿½ it may make investors in cruise missile manufacturers even more prosperous than investors in gold. (1 hour 28 minutes)

The bushkultie doesn't realize it.

One of the most important things to know
about weapons is when not to use them.

Bush and Cheney never learned that.

http://www.911proof.com/

Notice that the bushkultie won't be able to address
any of the facts from the above site at all.

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

Of course you hate America when you insist that those who murder Americans should not be prosecuted
according to the rule of law.

Notice that you can't name one thing that would be admissible evidence against the scapegoat chosen by your fascist masters.

The bushkultie has no admissible evidence, and doesn't even know what it is.

You always do.

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their offshore accounts.

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

http://www.oilempire.us/911.html

Nobody had the means/motive/opportunity of Bush and Cheney.

Well this is EXACTLY what happened. The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

http://www.freerepublic.com/forum/a3a3522a943db.html

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to think.

The official story of 9/11 is a fabrication that would never hold up in court.

The bushkultie can't recognize much less understand them,
but they remain nonetheless.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to think.

The official story of 9/11 is a fabrication that would never hold up in court.

The bushkultie can't recognize much less understand them,
but they remain nonetheless.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,

If it's electronic, it's no election.

Make a note of that.

It's important.

If your radials and feedpoint are elevated you can get by with 5 or 6 radials. That claptrap about hundreds of 1/4 wave wires, etc. has been disproven. Put your vertical on the roof. You will definitely need a tuner at the feedpoint. MFJ-925, or MFJ-928 will work. No way 80 will load up with the tuner in the radio.

Ice melts : when the surrounding temperature rises (Earth is getting cooked, by itself) . Or, in another way-- if the amount of Solar energy , directed towards the Earth, goes up . . . Or , if Al Gore talks the sleeping volcanoes (through some witchcraft-voodoo-power) into erupting one after another (like we just witnessed in Iceland) .
The last scenario may bring about various scenarios- like a global change in climates . The final effects can be unpredictable , to say the least .

What you are saying is that government and minimum wage have both failed to make it so the poor get their fair share?

And you want more of the same?

Sounds like you couldn't before then, so you think everyone else was/is the same?

Weird ...

You keep telling us about yourself, and what you think the world is like -- you keep telling us what the world through your eyes was ... I keep wondering why you think we are interested!

You boys who got taken care of by the government, and were as poor as church mice before daddy government took care of baby think everyone shares your story ... your family one which was chased west by the dust bowl? Are you a real life character out of a hemingway novel and think everyone else is too -- again, who gives a rat ass.

Go down to the local saloon and tell the other dust bowl bums, if any are still alive ... are those the grapes of wrath I smell? ROFLOL!

Get another idiot Texan to fix the mess the last one made? Seems logical...

Perry brags about balanced budgets, but fails to point out that Federal spending is what balanced it. He used stimulus money to balance his budget, while railing against the evil Federal government.

Won't get fooled again.

So you are _still_ ignorant of the subject you posted? Not a surprise, you seem to be ignorant about almost everything.

BTW the 1957 was bought when I was 22 and working for a living with only a HS diploma. Never had any government involved until Soc Scty.

But then, as with most of your posts, you are wrong about everything you posted above. Again, not a surprise.

juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Your reverse logic doesn't seem to ever suffer from failure, and simple too! There are just two rules:

1) If you say it is true, it is probably false and a fraud.

1) If you say it is NOT true, it most likely is.

Thanks, we got it, we have known all along, you can stop with the demonstrations and only explain to the newbies who might be confused ...

Magnetic lines of force do not exist, because such lines of force have never been detected. We've only observed how paramagnetic and

Michael,

You Do the Best You Can : Which What You Got [.]
-wrt- Radials/Reflectors

If you have an Attic 'space' that you can work-in :

Place the Radials {Reflectors} 'under' the Roof in the Attic -hidden-

Use 2~4 Feet Wide Wide Fencing Metal Wire Fabric for your Attic Radials/Reflectors [Hidden]
-usually-the-the-least-expensive-you-can-buy-

Tip : Use Fencing Staples to Hold the Fabric to the Underside of the Roof Rafters.
* Along the Length {Ridge} of the Attic as much as you can.
* Across the Width "^" {Side-to-Side} of the Attic as much as you can.
* Forming an "X" {Cross} of Four (4) Wide Radials/Reflectors under the Base/Center of you Antenna.

Butternut HF9V 80-6 9-Band Vertical Antenna http://www.bencher.com/ham/index.php?main_page=product_info&products_id=14
-note- No radials required with the optional CPK Counterpoise kit.
Accessory kit for 160 meter coverage available.

Where does your Property Line End on each side of the House ?
Distance Center of the Roof to the Property Lines ?

Use a 5'~10' Metal 'Mast' between the Roof and Antenna.

Attach the Radials where the Mast meats the Antenna.

Rig the Radials 'above' the Surface of the Roof from 5~3 Feet and extend them as far as you can {needed} angling downward to your Property Lines.

If you do not have the 'Space' for a Horizontal Antenna to Work All

Chameleon V11 -a/o- V12 Multiband 'Dipole' Antennas
http://www.chameleonantenna.com/page9/page9.html

It's a "Dipole" Antenna that is Mounted Verically The Upper-Half is the Radiator and the Bottom-Half is the Reflector* {both equal and balance}. A so-called 'mono-pole' single-pole antenna.

Limprod here are three notorious lies by NIST

The NIST story!

(1)NIST first notorius lie was Floride prevents tooth decay. They were CREATED by the government to hide the adverse affects of Hitlers mind altering Floride experiments on the human nervous System headed by Col Stafford Warren(Project F) they used the name Bureau of Standards back then,after the lawsuits started pouring in they changed their name.

(2)Notorious lie number two was they said JFK was killed by a lone assasin to cover up the governments connection!

They called that panel of lie spewers the WARREN COMMISSION as a joke on society since it worked soo good selling floride was good to drink!

(3)After changing their name to National Institute of Standards and Technology their last notorios lie was the US Government was not connected to the 911 fiasco!

This is a good read about the many lies of NIST the word National is a dead givaway to Government connected WAR MONGARS and genocide on its own people to still oil from other countries!

http://www.gnosticliberationfront.com/toxic_secrets_fluoride_and_a_bomb_program.htm

They did not make a TYPO in their lie telling in none of their reports!

That's because your premise is false, Johnny KQQK. My logic is iron-clad and my claims have been proven. This is not in dispute.

You're lying of course, as I have proven on multiple occasions.

Your claims have been proven false and you have not yet NAMED ONE THING in the official findings that is incorrect.

Why is that, Johnny KQQK? Why all your tap dancing?

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Ah... Alex "K00K3R KING" Jones.

Don't know where he got that information. There's nothing at all about it in the named Dodd-Frank Act, where there is no mention of "precious metals" (the word precious appears nowhere in the text, the only mention of the word "metal" is in regards to a reference to heavy metals in children's jewelry), and the only mention of "gold" is in reference to "Golden Parachute." Plus the act refers only to trading in derivitives markets to manipulate the market, such as the BS that got us into such deep poop in the housing market. Even the article posted states that only Forex is stating this and that they're using an odd interpretation of the act upon which to base their opinions.

Use your noodle for just a moment: If ALL OTC trading of precious metals were made illegal, then nobody would have any for manufacture of jewelry, electronics, ad inf.

Don't they already do this at the space station? I know they recycle urine into drinking water. Reconstitution of waste into food would be an absolute necessity for long space voyages.

Tell Republicans to Drop their Plan to Privatize Social Security

Republicans are rolling out another plan to "privatize" and end Social Security as we know it, turning seniors' guaranteed benefits into a guaranteed gamble. The last time they tried this was 2005. Just think, if they succeeded then, seniors would have lost trillions more in the 2008 financial crash.

We protected Social Security then.
Let's stand together to protect it again now.

Help us get 100,000 signatures for our petition calling on House Republicans to drop their reckless plan to end Social Security as we know it. Add your name and then spread it far and wide to your friends and family.

Understood. I still maintain that the Dodd-Frank act doesn't seem to propose doing that. What they are trying to stop is hoarding to drive up the price and/or to otherwise manipulate the market. Dodd-Frank is a consumer protection law, and I can't see any way that taking all the precious metals into government control would do a thing to help the consumer. All I could see it do is tank the precious metals market and create a class of criminal that currently doesn't exist. Of course, that WOULD mean need for more law enforcement jobs.

The only way to protect the consumer from commodity hoarders is to take the commodity under federal control. That is to say, to control who may and may not buy. In order to do that, the government would have to know, and evaluate any individual's holdings, and descriminate between a hoarder, and someone who simply converted large assets to that commodity for asset protection. Since the government cannot know what motivates any individual, they would have to impose broad powers to set limits, or worse, means test the buyer, who may simply protecting their assets against market losses.

All of which opens the door to government interference in the otherwise legal purchase, and possession of the commodity.

As we've learned over the last several years, the government is NOT to be trusted in matters that intrude into private citizen activities. This includes, and may especially include, ownership of precious metals.

The bushkultie cowers in fear.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to think.

The bushkultie can't prove it'd be true, of course.

The official story of 9/11 is a fabrication that would never hold up in court.

The bushkultie can't recognize much less understand them,
but they remain nonetheless.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal
Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks,
which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

http://articles.cnn.com/2001-09-16/us/inv.binladen.denial_1_bin-laden-taliban-supreme-lead er-mullah-mohammed-omar?_s=PM:US

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

You do have problems.

Of course you can't name one item of admissible evidence

>...cannot NAME ONE...

Of course you can't name one item of admissible evidence

So what's your excuse for your inability to insist on a valid trial for the most horrific crime of this millenium to date?

>kooker...

That is your best excuse.

Of course you hate America when you insist that those who murder Americans should not be prosecuted
according to the rule of law.

Notice that you can't name one thing that would be admissible evidence against the scapegoat chosen
by your fascist masters.

>... run away again without NAMING ONE THING ...

Of course you can't name one item of admissible evidence

The bushkultie has no admissible evidence, and doesn't even know what it is.

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Well this is EXACTLY what happened. The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Camp Shelby is getting some new major upgrades.
All of the Barracks (except for one, about two weeks) I lived in were the old style wooden Barracks, they didn't have airconditioning.The one that did have airconditioning, at Fort Hood, was made of bricks, it had airconditioning, 502nd Supply and Transportation Company.We called it Sh!t and Trash.502nd wanted me to give a speech about my year in Vietnam, I told them NO.They had me transfered to the 22nd Chemical Company, smoke generators, smoke pots, smoke grenades, maintance and supply, that kind of stuff.Suited me just Fine, even though the Barracks didn't have airconditioning.At 502nd, I was in the Fuel Supply outfit, choking on that silt dust all day long.Sheet, best Duty I ever had was in the 22nd Chemical Company, I didn't have to do nuttin!

thanx for all the input... between the on-line advice i was given and from a local ham, i have decided on going with a wire dipole to start with. i have the room to string it up. my lot is not very wide, but it is very deep. about 60 yards. i plan on screwing a hook on the side of my house at the peak of the roof. from there, i can hang the center. the poles can extend down and out along the depth of my lot. more than enough room to do that and set the poles at an ideal angle for an inverted V. this set up will take me all of twenty minutes to arrange.

the draw back is that it will be right near the house. not ideal, but the best i can manage. later on down the road, if i enjoy the hobby, i can put in a tower. no restrictions for me in the north nj suburb where i live.

getting a ham ticket was sort of an afterthought for me. i wanted a better receiver for sw dx listening and found that some of the best dsp receivers were also transmitters too -). no sense in buying one without a ham ticket, no ??? :-) it migth be fun to be on the other end of things for once. just answering basic questions to get my first station set up has sort of "sucked me in". i've just about forgotten that i just wanted to get a better sw rig

I guess you are not aware of the gold confiscation of the 1930's?

I remember my family had to swap/buy/sell gold on "the black market" which existed here in the USA, as the price the government would buy it from you at was ridiculous. My grandmother didn't seem to have any problem keeping or wearing her gold jewelery, watches, necklaces, wedding bands, etc.

Jewelery and jewelers must have had some type of exemption.

However, when my grandmother finally removed all the gold from a secret safe she kept, and moved it back to a banks lockboxes was sometime in the 60's, I think. Makes me think those controls/confiscations must have existed up until then, but I am not sure, not much info about it, at all, on the internet ... but I remember, it was a BIG deal with my family and they refused to sell gold to the government and hid what they had -- even some jewelery. Luckily, the family new an old family which were jewelers, those jewelers always knew where to get top dollar for gold and the workings of the black markets!

I remember this well because I would always get a gold coin from my grandmother for xmas/birthday every year ... I still have many of these coins, the most valuable with collector values -- just wish I had kept every one! But hey, fast cars, and fast women, takes their toll ... :-(

I don't see how they have a choice, not to do some type of manipulations with gold, paper money is suffering massive devaluing and you will need a wheelbarrow load of bills to buy a loaf of bread! Or, at least, it appears it is heading that way now!

I think, you had better rethink all that. Since the development of processes to make REAL diamonds (diamonds which CANNOT be told apart from naturally occurring ones) gold (or, other precious metals) are the ONLY way to safely and fool-proof-ly, keep gold across and disasters, both man made and natural!

When has government, EVER, told the real reason they perform their "magic manipulations?"

Remember the "Golden Rules":

1) He with the gold makes the rules.

2) Follow the money! (or, actually, GOLD!)

3) Silver is the "Poor Mans' Gold."

Actually, they are just expanding, and rather stealthily, sneak-ily, etc. the reporting and tracking of gold:

http://www.shtfplan.com/precious-metals/government-moves-to-tax-track-all-gold-transaction s_07212010
(better discussions on this can be found on the net)

When "they" come to get your guns, or imprison you for the "loss" of them -- they will be grabbing precious metals, also.

You are already wise to keep gold purchases to many small quantities rather than one large one ... and, to keep an eye on the availability of black markets, as what good will the gold do you if the government forces you to sell it to them at no better prices than if you had simply saved worthless dollars?

When I was a child, one very effective method of "storing gold" was in fruit jars with the caps dipped in wax and buried in the ground ...

Just be careful, I can remember my grandfather going around his property and probing the ground with a metal rod ... seems he forgot were he buried a jar or two ... if I remember correctly, he never did find that "missing gold." Who knows, maybe someone else "got lucky", I just know it wasn't me ... ROFLOL!

Now, why on earth would you need to use a jar, much less seal it with wax given Gold's nature as an effectively non-reactive metal.

Same reason you keep it in a drawer/shelf in a safe, I suppose, to keep it organized and clean ... but then, you could just toss it on the floor, or chuck it in a hole ...

This is not a laughing matter Shill #2

BDK should be arested for child abuse before it is born. These loose women have children so the state will pay for their up bringing.However BDK will use that money to support her crack habit and have more children soo her income will support her habit! A blood test should be given to every pregnate woman to determine if the mother is fit to have that child,If drugs are present the State shuold take the chid and put it up for forster care so it can overcome its born dependency!

Betty vote for me and I will assure that a new law will be passed to guarrantee attics have their tubes tied so newborns wont ever have to be detoxed at birth!

I approve this message!

Not only that, but the average person will look at your shiny metal and ask WTF am I supposed to do with THAT? It's big time unlikely at this point that it will ever become a currency again, to be used by the common person to trade for goods. I think it much more likely the world would return to serfdom, where the rich own everything and the rest of us work for them and are allowed to stay on THEIR property in exchange for that work.

Historically, gold was accepted as a constant value item - until the age of exploration changed this. Adjusting a currency to a single commodity can be dangerous. Think of what would happen if we got transmutation or some other way to cheaply increase the supply.

We kind of have that with backless currency as well - except the powers are in more control - with different risks.

Hey, you can sell any gold you have, if you ever get a job and can afford any ... a fool and his money are soon parted, yanno'?

Actually, I am looking forward to them criminalizing forms of gold exchange, selling, buying, possessing, etc.

Anything on the black market doubles in price the first day it becomes illegal ... there is a steep upward climb, then a dip and a level off ...

If people didn't sell gold, I couldn't buy any ... already more gold has been sold than has ever been produced in the whole wide world ... the "paper gold" is really worthless, but you have to see people show up with the papers and demand the gold (a type of "run on the bank"), and then those with the gold (supposedly) default, go bankrupt, disappear, etc.

But, this could just all straighten itself out, an abundance of GOOD PAYING jobs be created, everyone go back to work, have the trillions now missing suddenly show up, etc. ... I mean it could happen! ROFLOL

This is very true, every drop of fresh water in any fresh water supply is now owned by someone. Even if you buy water rights with property, and you wish to sink a well, in some areas this is regulated, and more laws for more regulation are on the way ...

There is agricultural land in some places which is useless, simply because the owner/grower can't get an adequate water supply ...

Where I live, in the San Joaquin Valley, the big pump stations which are taking water down south to the LA area are already causing saltwater intrusion into the delta ... in some of the outlying farm lands the crops are showing reduced yield and salt damage ... overhead irrigation from deep wells has also caused a lot of selenium poisoning of some of the crop land and wetlands ...

Over farming has depleated a lot of the soils and trees and grapes are now grown on what was once grade A crop land ... mineral depletion of the soils is even causing problems ... the problems of raping the land are just beginning to show up, but they are going to be becoming real and expensive very soon ... probably in my lifetime we will be looking a $5-$10-??? dollar-a-piece tomatoes ...

Gee, we just got through tossing uncountable amounts of deadly toxic oil and "dispersants" into the gulf of mexico, and now we are going to be surprised that the killing zone of these is going to be worldwide?

Such oil spills have been going on, unreported, for a long time ... couple that up with the dumping of garbage and sewage into the oceans and it is a wonder there is anything left in there which can be eaten!

Now you have uncountable amounts of nuclear toxins being discharged from japan ... I mean, there is a reason people don't look to toxic garbage dumps, graveyards and septic tanks for something to eat!

Here an English scientist attempts to explain it, the ether, so the common man might "understand" it ...:

http://query.nytimes.com/mem/archive-free/pdf?res=F20A10FE3F5A147A93CBA91789D85F448285F9

And, here we are again, like fish discovering they live in water:

http://www.popsci.com/technology/article/2011-05/controversial-gravity-experiment-proves-spacetime-vortex-around-earth

Basically proving there is no time, just a medium which can be referred to as "spacetime", since there is only ether, movement though this ether, speed which the movement takes place though the ether, and position within the ether ... or, simply:

spacetime = ether = aether = gravitational ether (and, the relationship of gravity and ether is a mystery, but as the experiment proves, matters gravity DOES affect the ether ...

But then, for many decades now, this is exactly what Einstein said ...
the bowling ball on the mattress ...

I like the idea of yours to turn your doggies "food byproduct" into a usable food source!

However, candy tootsie rolls are probably out of the question, you might look into the possibility of processing them into "Turd Dogs" though, perhaps an acceptable substitute, to the Japanese, for hot dogs!

Gee, we just got through tossing uncountable amounts of deadly toxic oil and "dispersants" into the gulf of mexico, and now we are going to be surprised that the killing zone of these is going to be worldwide?

Such oil spills have been going on, unreported, for a long time ... couple that up with the dumping of garbage and sewage into the oceans and it is a wonder there is anything left in there which can be eaten!

Now you have uncountable amounts of nuclear toxins being discharged from japan ... I mean, there is a reason people don't look to toxic garbage dumps, graveyards and septic tanks for something to eat!

That's molecular density of 1 atom/m3 in the most extreme IGM.

How many carbon buckyballs/km3 or /m3?

How many wandering/rogue electrons/m3?

How many wandering/rogue positrons/m3?

How many gravity forces? (at least 1e12)

How many magnetic forces? (at least 1e12)

How many all-inclusive photons/m3 on average?

Only a few decades ago there was no idea of Oort clouds. Now we know better.

Only a few years ago they thought our galaxy had only a few hundred billion stars and hardly any red dwarfs or much less brown dwarfs. Now we know that red and brown dwarfs are the vast majority at 4 to 5 fold more stars, pushing the galactic stellar count to over a trillion.

Only a few months ago it was thought there was hardly anything wandering within our galaxy. Now we know better. (same goes for wandering IGM items)

If the JWST ever gets to fly, it'll probably have a hard time with all the sub-molecular fog of wandering particles and otherwise record those cold distortions that are out there.

Clearly something of a ether matrix is out there. Lensing is another indication of the ether that propagates photons.

I wonder how many buck balls are in our solar system and between the stars? Should we call them 'Liz Taylors" (diamonds). Space has a continual flow of neutrinos and photons. Space is hot with microwaves It is tachrons giving their energy to give life to virtual space particles,and their waves. Tachrons make the aether the universe's most dynamic place. TreBert

As stated previously NIST is a government agengy designed to tell lies.

You cant find one thing in their report that is not deception!

The NIST story!

(1)NIST first notorius lie was Floride prevents tooth decay. They were CREATED by the government to hide the adverse affects of Hitlers mind altering Floride experiments on the human nervous System headed by Col
Stafford Warren(Project F) they used the name Bureau of Standards back
then,after the lawsuits started pouring in they changed their name.

(2)Notorious lie number two was they said JFK was killed by a lone
assasin to cover up the governments connection!

They called that panel of lie spewers the WARREN COMMISSION as a joke on society since it worked soo good selling floride was good to drink!

(3)After changing their name to National Institute of Standards and Technology their last notorios lie was the US Government was not connected to the 911 fiasco!

This is a good read about the many lies of NIST the word National is a dead givaway to Government connected WAR MONGARS and genocide on its own people to still oil from other countries!

http://www.gnosticliberationfront.com/toxic_secrets_fluoride_and_a_bomb_program.htm

They did not make a TYPO in their lie telling in none of their reports!

Could some of the dark matter in the universe actually be a sort of spacetime "pollution" that's been going on for eons, if not thousands of eons, due to increased space travel? And if this is the case, wouldn'y radio waves become inhibited by such interference?

Space is not empty, as otherwise photons could get from point-A to point-Ze100.

Actually the same photon never goes anywhere, because it just starts the chain-reaction of passing along instructions to the next available photon, same as electrons going into a wire are not the same electrons coming out the other end. Without a medium we're kinda screwed.

Even the Gravity-B science seems to have demonstrated that we're in an ether soup or matrix of some kind, which is entirely different than any anything molecular or force related.

Besides the 1+ molecular atom/m3 (actually 2.7 K might suggest an average of at least 1000/m3); remember the LHC at 1e-10 Torr and 1.9 K still has something like 3e6/cm3 to contend with.

How many carbon buckyballs/km3 or /m3?

How many wandering/rogue electrons/m3?

How many wandering/rogue positrons/m3?

How many gravity forces? (at the very least 1e12)

How many magnetic forces? (at the very least 1e12)

How many trillions upon trillions upon trillions of all-inclusive photons/m3 on average?

So who cares?

The gold will be just fine with or without the lid, and if it's buried long enough to worry about the lid rusting out, particularly at the time we're talking, then it's already going to have been in the ground over 20 years and unlikely to ever be dug up.

I have no idea, but I do wish your mother would come back and collect you.

I have quite a bit of gold, though generally in the form of collectable US gold coins which appreciate at far high rate than bullion does. Most of them the older coins, but I do have one I picked up at a local pawn shop because it was graded MS-70 for a MS-60 price.

Depends upon where you are. In Europe and Africa, and western Asia, 7.000-7.100 is an exclusive ham band. 7.100 to 7.200 is also NOW an exclusive ham band, but stations that were there have time to move, they are not being forced to.

7.200 on up is a Shortwave broadcasting band.

Note that not all countries enforce these rules and some places let you operate on whatever frequency you want.

7.000-7.300 is a ham band in the Americas, but as you wrote, it's shared with SWBC stations.

I have no idea of what's allocated in eastern Asia, Oz, etc.

Just because someone is broadcasting in Arabic does not mean they are in what is traditionaly considered an Arab country. For example, there is an Indian language longwave station in the middle of England.

Well, hell, there's a Polish language station in the middle of Chicago.

Yeah a 'National' [Country/Government] Shortwave Radio Broadcaster like Radio Mauritanie on 7245 kHz can do what-ever El Presidente lets/directs them to do.

They are transmitting off the Coast of Africa
East towards Africa not the USA/North America {West}.

So what I heard was the back-side of their Signal; or a 2/3rds Around-the-World Signal.

Seems little difference in pneumatic solenoids, electric solenoids, or a manual shifting lever in engaging and disengaging gears in the drive train ...

Push button = vacuum shift ... I believe it was an old plymouth I had which had those push buttons ...

In the big rigs I drove, with 21 speed road ranger transmission, it was a little bitty switch on the gear shift with kicked in under/and over on each main gear engaged with the gear shift ... sure beat the old 4x4 boxes!

People back then had 5000X the personal space than they do now.
Popular politicization now favors anyone willing to open their pockets and bank accounts to parasites, rather than patriots.

The master plan is to suck the blood supply dry through Federal exchanges of the kind the nation is currently experiencing. Social incrementalists prefer to look down their noses at anyone without this ability. Clearly its a plan to FUD anyone without enough personal space around them, that equates security with material wealth.

Public speaking for the love of money, where only money = security is one thing. Speaking for the heart, soul, and mind of a nation for that security is completely another.

I remember in 1958, reading "A Night To Remember" as part of a class project, and writing a paper on it to be read to the class. The teacher was surprised by my choice of material. Hell, it had a boat on the cover...enough for me.

So, I read the book, wrote the paper and turned it in for grade, prior to reading it to the class.

The teacher rejected it out of hand. Apparently I didn't get the message that Lord had intended. And that was (and she was extraordinarily clear about this):

That the truest honor would have been to leave the lifeboats in the davits with those that had boarded them remaining on board. That it was an act of the purest selfishness and greed to have boarded the lifeboats knowing that everyone could not do so. Survival meant nothing when so many would have to die.

The only honor, in fact the only DUTY of those selfish individuals, would have been to die with their shipmates to face what may come toether, rather than to be so self centered as to board the boats to survive the wreck.

She went on to drive the point home: If only one person had to die because the boats could not hold him, then it would have been their God given duty for everyone to remain on board and face the moment together.

She failed me on the paper.

She also insisted that we divide up and share what was in my lunch bags with other members of the class. I had leftover chicken cacciatore. What I got to eat was half of a PJ&Balogna. Eewww.

That was my first encounter with the social agenda in the schools.

I know you'll be shocked to know that I vociferously objected to her position.

OMG, Your teacher was a commie. You should have reported her to the School Board, the PTA, the committe on unamerican affairs, the teacher's union, etc.

Frankly, that is shocking, how someone could get something so easy, so screwed up!

I know nothing in the socialism which would suggest that all would die for an ideal, when it is survival which holds the importance -- and the greatest number being the major defining factor.

But the, many don't know what socialism is, yet speak upon it as if they do. True socialism is what the American Indian had in their lives. The tribe hunted together, shared together and either survived or died together. However, it was common to leave old people along the trail with a bit of food and water, to die ... it was the greatest good for the greatest number, the tribe could easily have lost many more if it had not been able to make harsh but logical decision.

The picture you paint of that ideal ridden teacher is one who lives by "emotionalism", and no recognized form of brave, noble standards I recognize. Frequently, when opposing a far superior enemy, but still recognizing the value, or even the logic in such action, a group of bonded patriots, heroes and men/women of noble and worthy standards of their high caliber, will choose to stand and fight, even to their death ... the goal being fought for simply dwarfs the value of their lives, and they recognize such.

But, when you see a world whose heroes are false frauds and composed of meaningless football players, rock stars, rappers, plastic personalities, etc. and worship false gods of money, power and wealth ... it is easy to see how such worthless ideals replace those of true substance.

In a totally industrialized world, where the resources are processed from their raw form into final products, by robots and technology with few mens hands involved, capitalism would be a stupid system to have in place ... socialism is always involved in any human activity, from birthday parties, to team playing, to church, to clubs and organizations, to pot luck dinners, to the peoples self-governance, etc. And, no matter what other systems may be involved, socialistic functions are what tend to define our better natures, sacrifices, pursuits, goals, achievements, etc. -- it is difficult for socialism to function with out team players, without democratic agreement amongst the people ...

What ever form of society and interactions of the people in their affairs, capitalism will lessen in importance, along with communism and any other form of doctorate governments and or ideals ...

Some form of democratic socialism seems, at this time, to be where a technological society freed of the struggles of survival and bare existence seems to be headed ... like it or not.

Trouble is, it excludes a "royal class" who can rule masses with money, wealth, power, war, manufactured shortages, threats, etc., and will always be resisted by such personalities -- right up to the point of them being willing to exterminate anyone who refuses to allow them the object(s) of their desire(s.)

I mean, it is only obvious ...

JS

Maybe not though. There was a class C7 solar flare flare today and its headed almost directly toward the Earth.

LOL! I think my parents reported her to the principal, who went about ballistic over the lunch thing.

I'm glad I didn't go where you did. The oddest thing the teachers or admins did was think that my mother would gave a shit if I tossed my lunch in the trash and ate at the restaurant down the street instead. When my mother asked her, "Don't you have something better to worry about than this sort of nonsense?", she realized that my mother thought she was insane. She went from gleeful, thinking she had "busted" me, to being really embarrassed when I laughed at her when my mom crushed her little dream.

Your teacher was just plain nutz!

Our Heavenly Father says,
"The world is in a great need of this Gift of Mine, because It is to encourage all mentalities to understand that I, as The Creator of all mankind and all other things, want the Souls of human beings to be protected, not abused, because the Souls are to be returned to Me in a ‘pure state’ as I once gave Them at the moment of conception."

REVELATION DELIVERED THROUGH FRANCES M. KLUG
ON JULY 22,2003 AT 8:56 A.M.

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER

“I am your Heavenly Father.

This little one I use to deliver to thousands of human beings, What I Will them to understand and to believe, that at this time I am using a small voice to give to millions of men, women and children, Information based on My Love and My Will to encourage all ages to be mindful that they have a Portion within them that is to be protected. It is called ‘the Soul’. The Soul is many times the victim of immoral actions, lies, and indifferences to the importance of how an individual acts, or uses impurities that are not just demeaning, but sacrilegious.

The world is in a great need of this Gift of Mine, because It is to encourage all mentalities to understand that I, as The Creator of all mankind and all other things, want the Souls of human beings to be protected, not abused, because the Souls are to be returned to Me in a ‘pure state’ as I once gave Them at the moment of conception.

I have not given this little one I use an easy task, but I am assured she will stand strong on all facts that I declare to be necessary for Souls to be returned to Me in a state of purity.

I will not speak long at this time, but I assure you, My Words are Words of The Divine. Many try to argue this point, or resist the reality of it, but I decline to allow it to be the final word. That is why I speak so many times, reassuring human beings that I am not out of their sight or degree of hearing them.

I know All Things, and I have come at this time to assure human beings that I had and have a Purpose for their lives, because within them I have a Portion of Me, even though It is not able to be seen, but It is felt automatically when decisions have to be made on what is right over what is wrong, what is pure over what is evil, what is just over what is unjust. I am always aware of all things.”

Said by Johnny KQQK, the proven retard who cannot even find a single typo in the NIST report as he flails in impotent rage at his TOTAL

INABILITY to NAME ONE THING!!

Hint: I have proven both you and * Hates US * not only to be wrong, but ridiculously wring with claims that are physically impossible. You lose. Again.

Why do you god believers have such a hard-on for ether?

Is it because neither actually exists? Is that it?

Then you must do your research starting with Bureau of Standards and see why they were designed.Hitlers sodium flouride altered the minds of the entire NAZI war machine.The madd german scientist continued this method of brainwashing in America.Project F was a secret study to show the adverse effects flouride was having on the human nervous system and was declared safe by Col.Stafford Warren a government puppet.

The citizens of the USA were guinea pigs and are still being used as subjects for (cough) scientific studies.
Today we are ingesting mega loads of population control chemicals,thanks to Monsantos seeds,chemtrails areal sprays,and HAARPs mind altering EMFsthat do damage body organs.

However your brain has been altered not to respond to reality but to caress your specially designed education system and you cant break you trance!

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at
birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

I don't care. I was addressing the idea that 1920 is a long time ago, in terms of research. There's no such thing as "aether". Magnetic lines of force exist around magnets and energized conductors. They require no medium.

It is because they you have to look like you, a complete moron, to deny this is all a creation of a creator, and something can exist within nothing ...

It is because they would have to be willing to look like you, a complete moron, to deny this is all a creation of a creator, and something can exist within nothing ... it takes a mind of certain capabilities to be able to use logic and reason, and allowing the individual(s) in question the ability to conventionalize the complexities ... to realize what platforms are necessary to set this all in motion, to have it in existence ...

If an aetherist really wanted to throw an iron in the fire, he could validate himself first by claiming that Einstein's Theory of Relativity is not a Law, but just a theory. In that sense, a theory cannot be proven. But there are other ways of stating the formula: E=m_e(c^2)=lambda_e(W_k)(W_x)=e(W_x), where lambda_e represents the wavelength of the electron, W_k represents the wave intrinsic to the particle (or to the linear momentum carried by the massfree particle, usu. equal to de Broglie's pilot or group wave, with W_x representing the particle, or "extrinsic" to momentum, that is analogous to de Broglie's phase wave, and "e" representing the charge of the electron).

Thus the Einstein equation offers only the electromagnetic portion of mass-energy, and must be taken into consideration with the fine structure of the mass-energy, as the fine structure relates to the condensate of the "aether", and not the electromagnetic field.

Enter scalar electromagnetics, where the electron represents a spherical standing wave with an "in" portion and "out" portion. Each of their "potential" amplitudes are actually infinite at the center of the spherical standing wave, but when both opposites are forced to combine, they form a standing wave of finite amplitude. That amplitude is a scalar, and not an electromagnetic vector.

Thus the speed of light is not so much a barrier as it is a speed of energy exchange.

The truth is open to the eyes ...

"Any fool can make things bigger, more complex, and more violent. It takes a touch of genius-and a lot of courage-to move in the opposite direction." -- Albert Einstein

In a truly empty box, there is no room -- there is no "space", only an idiot could possibly call any container "empty" which contains "spacetime" or the ether, there simply would be nothing to hold the sides, top and bottom apart!

You fall prey to the same mistake most make, if your ideas have been in error long enough, they become truth! However, on close examination, that is false, in itself ...

and the crimes which the USA military is being used for ...

The horrors, destruction, devastation, pain, suffering, etc. which we are allowing the criminals in our government to force upon sovereign nations are crimes beyond description ...

On a scale which would measure the toxic garbage, sewage, engine exhausts, man made chemicals, drug, etc., carbon dioxide would NOT even register ...

I think the "smart criminals" in government are highly aware of this, so they have devised a FALSE PROBLEM to use as an excuse to tax us on, it is a non-problem which needs no fix, nor could a "successful" one ever be devised ... therefore, it is just an excuse for another permanent tax and the theft of the citizens monies ... gee, really, we have enough of those ...

Ever heard of John Archibald Wheeler? There's the "Participatory Anthropic Principle" that formulates that it was other observers that create our reality. If so, is that why humans pray to a higher form of intelligence, i.e. "God, YHWH, Lord", rather than hope that we'll have enough money to pay the humanist piper?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_Archibald_Wheeler

The multinationalist banking, unions, and (non-aetheric) fundamentalist colonialists are left having to explain for themselves why things should always continue as they have been, since the days of Woodrow Wilson (Father of Modern Progressivism). IMO presidents Lincoln through Wilson, with the possible exception of Taft, proved that most political parties since Tesla, remained in the back pockets of the wealthy transnationalists, who would use fear, uncertainty, and death (FUD) to serve their own, metered energy needs.

Who are people like Newt Gingrich, Ron Paul, Romney, Cain, Palin, Pawlenty, and Bachmann? They're all just in the front of a very long line of puppets and ponzi schemes, designed to rip off the population at the expense of the multinationalists. Yeah, the problem is deep and runs through treacherous waters. America is being set up for another "Greece", even after Einstein himself (1921) was quoted as saying:

"It strikes me as unfair, and even in bad taste, to select a few individuals for boundless admiration, attributing superhuman powers of mind and character to them. This has been my fate, and the contrast between the popular assessment of my powers and achievements and the reality is simply grotesque."

What ever happened to "Realville", as opposed to "Literalville"? With data skewed based upon political agendas, and status-quo agendas based upon everything that has been done before, all the while what's left of the heathen, gets taxed and spent to death without a single squeak about the massive lie being perpetrated inside the iron beltway.

... exactly ... and why I said:

The truth is open to the eyes ...

"Any fool can make things bigger, more complex, and more violent. It takes a touch of genius-and a lot of courage-to move in the opposite direction." -- Albert Einstein

The only people deserving of picking out of a crowd and listening to have the foundation facts, which everything else is being constructed on, correct ...

Before you can lay something on a table, you have to have the table ... before a universe can be constructed, you have to have the space for it to exist, into ... ether is the platform that everything else exists within and upon ... indeed, it is the very substance which all matter we can touch and see is constructed from ...

It is really quite easy to build "something", once you have "something" to build it from ...

Some things are relevant to radio, gravity, ether, energies, etc., politicians and forefathers are not, with the exception of Benjamin Franklin who "discovered" electricity ...

Yanno', there is nothing about gold.

And, there is "Fools' Gold", and fools can buy gold, same as anyone else!

Yanno', there is nothing "special" about buying gold.

And, there is "Fools' Gold", and fools can buy gold, same as anyone else!

But then, pretty much the same holds true with buying, selling, trading any commodities!

Worthless, if used for its intended purpose once.
Gold (at least) can be molded into bullets for food or killing liberals trying to steal your food...or toilet paper.

Just make sure you retrieve your bullets AND brass!

The documents which grant us franchise on the form of American government, and our way of life are given us, mainly, in three documents, The Declaration of Independence, The Constitution and The Bill of Rights. Each preceding document serving as a platform for the rights and powers granted to the people by each succeeding document. They give us "creator granted rights" with are inalienable -- they can neither be given away nor taken away -- they simply can never be "lost", they are ours for the duration of the life of the universe, as long as the human race and its' progeny exist. If they are ever forcefully taken, limited, or harmed, in any way, it our duty, our responsibility to have no rest until they are firmly regained and established in full ... this responsibility demands that we be willing to lay down our very lives in this pursuit, if necessary, and to repay such debts as we owe to those before us who made such sacrifices for us.

A platform of rules, laws and logic underlays all these, there are very much inline with "Christian principles", you can play with that anyway you like ...

The truth is unseen. If the whole truth were to be revealed all at once, then Moses would have seen the face of God. Certain rules have to be laid down before the truth can be revealed. The "picture" alone is not enough to validate the truth, unless those who are perpetrating the "foundation" or "table" that you mention, are doing it for the cause of the "truth", i.e. righteousness, survival, defense, etc.

Engineering drawings IMO become self-perpetrating, once the original architect's idea comes more into focus. Even the architect may gain his understanding from other sources, which could be science fiction (originally science "faction, circa Disney's "Tomorrowland", 1955, which later became "Star Tours: The Adventures Continue" in 2011).

How much this is based in reality, rather than "escapism", will probably result in the latter for most. If anyone else has any better ideas available - ideas that will guarantee to put money in the pockets of millions of potential entrepreneurs, then it would have to be accomplished outside of the current FUD complex of master/slave economics. In other words, the "driver" of the economy should become based upon a new form of energy, but not completely outside of the oil markets. That would have to be in the heavier earth-to-orbit industry, in addition to many things having already been invented, but forced into subterfuge, by the FUD masters.

One can listen to Wheeler's invective "Participatory Anthropic Principle" and wonder if he (Wheeler) was falling prey to those who will legislate, rather than put into practice, true scientific intuitive principles - principles that will always have to be at the expense of the FUD masters, rather than with those who are faithful for some off-world cause that doesn't depend upon liquid or solid propellent rockets getting us there. (Even if they were a product of the Apollo years, they still carried with them the ideas and interests of a more advanced technology, which I can't explain fully at the present time).

Rather than propose some form of individual, non-solid or non-liquid propellent-less vehicle, as if it were all the rage of the Star Wars enthusiasts, it would seem even more beneficial to propose several "attaching propulsive components", each with their own method singular propulsion, into a massive superstructure, such as the one I've mentioned in another thread. That would have to be the answer to anything attempting to force its "escapist" FUD master/slave kind of entertainment, upon the masses of yet-earthbound "believers" in this economy, at face value against whatever "entertainment" has now become.

One has to mention forefathers, as they relate to the original intent of the Constitution of the U.S. Major corporations have created a monster out of the Corporate State, disqualifying the present Constitution as a non-organic one, replacing the Thirteenth Amendment "If any citizen of the United States shall accept, claim, receive, or retain, any title of nobility or honor, or shall, without the consent of Congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office or emolument of any kind whatever, from any emperor, king, prince, or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States, and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them, or either of them", and adding fraudulent amendments to replace it. The 14th and 16th amendments were never ratified by the states!

Democracy replaces Republicanism with "mob rule" rather than "government of the people and by the people", and "we the people". If you follow the paper trail, it is rule by the Vatican, which utilizes the "mob rule" principle. The "Crown" is the king's corporation, setup to do the King's business and protect the King from any liability (Anyone say "B.P.'?). The bankers and the crown dress up their candidates for office, help them obtain election, and then control them while in office. Supposedly, one is supposed to have a choice, when both major political parties and other political parties are controlled by them.

Where are all of the new ideas being generated? Not in the current FUD state - that one's owned by most lobbyists. Major media is used to direct and control public opinion, that lies somewhere between the two hammers of the current Republican and Democratic "establishments".

"I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country.
Corporations have been enthroned, an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people, until the wealth of the nation is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic is destroyed."

- Abraham Lincoln, commenting after the passage of the National Banking Act of 1863 - the forerunner of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

I always wanted a gum machine like you, drop in a penny -- get a thousand gumballs ... when all you needed was one ...

But then, you find out they aren't gumballs! Only colored and empty shells ... made out of gawd knows what!

That's mean, you know all they have is decoder rings and this just goes over their heads ...

And, I don't know about all that, but if they were not allowed to dump these chemicals in our water and spray them on our foods, most would require dumping in Class A toxic dumps, and are byproducts of mining and the petrochemical industries ...

I have two old antique candy dispenser machines and one old U.S.Postage stamps dispenser machine.Table top models, they are.

Say cuzz, do you know what 'Table Grade' means? Maybe someday I will tell you.It's kind of naughty, if you know what I mean?

Funniest thing is, well, really NOT funny, if Animal Protection agencies heard you were locking up animals and feeding them feces, they'd, most likely, fine and imprison you!

Then your neigbors would petition to have you removed from the neighborhood and, you would be ostracized from the community!

If corporations do it, it is fine ...

The only real answer that someone who is intellectually honest with themselves is that we just don't know.

Anything else is bullshit.

Saying, "god did it", is just plain lazy.

It also puts an end to discussion.

ANY other position on this matter is a load of shit.

So let's say that you are correct (you're not) and 'god did it'.

Who created god?

To say that god is eternal is just adding a middle man. I could just as easily answer that with 'the universe is eternal'.

Again, the only real answer is that we just don't know.

And that's the bottom line.

All which we can be certain of is that this all took a creator. We can be also be certain that we must have a medium to exist in, before we can have anything to exist in it.

Whatever that medium is, since we have no bottle which can contain it, and since it remains, at this time, quite invisible to us, is the aether of ancient times and the ether of today ... it has been mistakenly referred to as the luminous ether, then denied altogether, then realized to have to exist, before anything else can, and give a platform for our matter to exist in, as defined by Einstein, and renamed the gravitational ether ... most likely, the very substance which the creator is "made of" ...

Now, we simply seek the proof of what we have already observed and deduced ... or not ...

JS

Wait till you hear this one.POTUS Osama still stockpiles the burnt fuel rods near the great lakes so it will get churned into the fresh water supply.

Rocky will like this entry!

The Madrid Fault Line runs right through the radioactive garbage dump. HAARP is going to create a mess this time.Osama does not want them removed and covered up in the desert for safe keeping!

Anyone who has bothered to read the Bible sees that the "Creator" in those stories never wanted anyone to have any rights. He was an oppressive monster, unworthy of respect.

The Declaration of Independence was wonderful propaganda, but it was clearly a propaganda piece, not the basis for the foundation of governance. The Bill of Rights is part of the Constitution of the US along with a number of other amendments, including the Civil War amendments which do a much better job of protecting rights of Americans than the ones found in the Bill of Rights.

They should just dump all nuclear waste off the coast of California, where those 80 THOUSAND barrels of radioactive crap already lie on the bottom.

I say creator, you say God, however, I am very unclear as to what difference exist between the two, or even if any does! But, we know the creator exists, as we have the creators creation(s) to prove it, the God of the bible takes a leap of faith to realize ...

A seemingly certain, and true, law of physics states, objects in motion tend to stay in motion, and objects at rest tend to stay at rest, it will, ALL OUR MATTER, eventually, reach a state of equilibrium, everything will become static, all movement will cease ... at some point, everything you see will finally come to a rest state, and, without doubt, was at rest before the creator stirred, and, most likely, existed in another form of existence ... our matter, whether created with that same movement, or before, was set in motion then -- at that time, I would guess the movement and creation were one in the same act
... but, that IS guessing.

The fact that this matter exists, all which we can see and touch and detect, is proof of a creator, it is direct proof that "something moved", and that movement disturbed a balance where everything was at rest ... the fact that it is in motion proves that, at east once, the creator moved and set it to motion ... for this to have occurred, there had to be a will, an intellect, a command issued, an action/movement performed ...

The fact that it exists now, "OUR MATTER", requires a medium for it to exist in -- indeed, this is the only reason Einstein was forced to acknowledge ethers' existence. So, the ether MUST exist, and allows for existence, movement with in a medium, and coordinates to locate/define its' position of existence in -- "OUR MATTER" ... now, perhaps the ether was, is and always will be (gee, God claims those same properties), or perhaps the creator created it as "the box" to hold his other creation(s.)

We now need to develop the "microscope" with which to "discover" the ether with ... CERN is certainly an attempt and/or path to such ...

Einstein, when stopped at "the wall of ether" simply declared it imponderable and moved on to what was explainable, or what could, at least, have theories applied to them. I am almost certain his mind would come back and touch, and frequently, upon the problem of the ether, however, I take his silence as meaning he made no progress, beyond acknowledging its' imponderable existence ...

Just don't confuse Leprechauns with the ether, one doesn't really exist, the other MUST ... ether is what holds a cardboard box open, AND gives it a platform to exist in, in the first place!

I am afraid this is the stopping point for myself also, as without doubt, Einstein had a much greater IQ than myself ... so naturally, I can only walk the paths and search along them, which he has cut before me ... I constantly search out those who claim to have made further progress, naturally ... to date, I find NO credible scientists who claim that our matter exists within "nothing", they simply provide theories on WHAT the ether is, and is not ... and none better than what I have already seen, "imponderable", at this time ...

Once this is all realized, it becomes quite simple, and can be summed up in few words, "something" cannot come from "nothing." And, everything will come to be at rest, if there is not a mind and a will to move it. And, it complexity is a product of an intelligence ... and that "EXPLAINS EVERYTHING", well, almost ...

JS

Yes, proof of what some of us perceive as the invisible matrix of dark/clear matter or the ether of space that seems to be in charge of everything.

There's over a trillion galactic points of gravity forces, magnetic forces and obviously trillions upon trillions upon trillions of photons/m3 at any given 3.3e-9 sec.. If that isn't a dark/clear matrix of ether, then perhaps nothing is.

I don't understand why my posts are disappearing. There was a lot of text missing that should have been posted.

One has to mention forefathers, as they relate to original intent of the U.S. Constitution. Major corporations have created a monster out of the Corporate State, disqualifying the present Constitution as a non-organic one, replacing the Thirteenth Amendment "If any citizen of the United States shall accept, claim, receive, or retain, any title of nobility or honor, or shall, without the consent of Congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office or emolument of any kind whatever, from any emperor, king, prince, or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States, and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them, or either of them", and adding fraudulent amendments to replace it. The 14th and 16th amendments were never ratified by the states!

http://www.uhuh.com/constitution/am13-fgd.htm

Democracy replaces Republicanism with "mob rule" rather than "government of the people and by the people", and "we the people". If you follow the paper trail, it is rule by the Vatican, which utilizes the "mob rule" principle. The "Crown" is the king's corporation, setup to do the King's business and protect the King from any liability (Anyone say "B.P.'?). The bankers and the crown dress up their candidates for office, help them obtain election, and then control them while in office. Supposedly, one is supposed to have a choice, when both major political parties and other political parties are controlled by them.

Where are all of the new ideas being generated? Not in the current FUD state - that one's owned by most lobbyists.

Major media is used to direct and control public opinion, that lies somewhere between the two hammers of the current Republican and Democratic "establishments".

Corporations have been enthroned, an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people, until the wealth of the nation is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic is destroyed."

- Abraham Lincoln, commenting after the passage of the National Banking Act of 1863 - the forerunner of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

Yes, I kinda of look at that as being in the same light as "too big to fail", but, in this case, "too criminal to prosecute." Imprisoning those who have committed minor crimes and treason, and hanging the worst offenders ...

Yes, I am thinking we are going to have to go to a direct democracy to correct all these problems, and remove many of the powers of decision we trust them with, from them. One man, one vote, and the direct vote of the people establishes law, and I would begin by making the old ones put though the process and removed from the books if not accepted by a majority of the people ...

If it were up to me, I see sufficient reason to imprison 50%-75% of them, a lot for life ... I'd hang a few, clinton, bush, and obama amongst them ...

(FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE)

Hey! Hey! We're the Monkeys!

For those of you who cannot get enough of the 75/80 meter dirt the band is rocking late nights into the morning hours like the love shack.
Consider a quake between two volcanoes things are heating up getting ready to erupt on 3840Mhz (SSB). If 3840 is considered the long hanging schlong then its two nut sacs of the frequency is the paranoid schizoid porky Frank Rossio (kk6fr) and its hairless left nut sac is the no talent Napoleon Complex inflicted chubby Noel Burman (ki6dkv).
Their pictures can be viewed below at the magnificent informative blog below.
http://pages.suddenlink.net/k6txh
The two hams are also known to frequent 14,552.5 (Simplex) which they also call the back channel or should that be back door the last chance inn where there's liquor up front and poker in the rear. This channel should be scrutinized because of the feeble minded individual who infest the frequency. But the rag chew on 3840 ended Monday morning with Frank Rossio taking a .44 caliber gun and audibly cocking it several times over the air like he was threatening a well liked and very gifted ham radio operators (Billy and Steve), who inadvertently cuts on frequency without signing.
Which is no biggie. We spoke to several DX'ers (Dx'ing is a term for listener) around the United States about 3840. J. Steinberg in a thick Chicago godfather accent from Topanga Canyon comments "Frankly I don't like the guy (kk6fr), he's an arrogant little punk who's nothin' but trouble. And that Noel is a stinkin' dirty rat who brags too much about nothin'. Velma Q. from Phelan comments
"Laura Smith should knock both their heads together and dump them down the drain like a spoiled egg and what's with kk6fr's fetish for sucking on cherry Popsicles over the air, did the man ever get over his penis envy stage! Good grief!" Mary from Burbank says "I do like that Greg fellow from Utah, he's a beautiful human being and his red Doberman pincher 'Whisky' man oh man he should put that dog down. Doggone it!." Elizabeth from Billings, Montana comments "oh that John (nv6r) from Ruth, Nevada sounds like he's got a piece of iceberg lettuce stuck between his teeth, yes siree pop. Somebody needs to send him a box of tooth picks." Despite that the comments are more in favor of getting rid of the vermin permanently banned from 3840. In other 3840 news one retired distinguished ham who is disabled inquired to pubic Chuck Ruff (no6l), who just recently moved with his lovely wife
to Tehatchapi, about fixing an antenna that was "incorrectly put up" the old disabled ham operator

ended up with a cold silent reply when asked to fix it. Yes there is Wingnuts one of the most entertaining ham operators to come of the woodwork in recent memory.
Say's G. Smithson "I just adore that Wingnut. He's surely may not have the cleanest mouth but he speaks the truth.3840 tis' the frequency of gypsies, tramps and thieves and the endless summer."

STILL after all these years you are incapable of even alleging ONE

Yep, that was back in 1998, I think. Al-Shifa pharmaceutical factory , in Khartoum . Bombed the hell out of that place . Never ceased to amaze me -- WMD ? B.Laden's buddies ? Still a great mystery . . .

At least Clinton had to admit to a few mistakes, so let us hope Obama can do the same without getting himself assassinated.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

"A team of physicists is claiming to have coaxed sparks from the vacuum of empty space1. If verified, the finding would be one of the most unusual experimental proofs of quantum mechanics in recent years and "a significant milestone", says John Pendry, a theoretical physicist at Imperial College London who was not involved in the study. "

"At the heart of the experiment is one of the weirdest, and most important, tenets of quantum mechanics: the principle that empty space is anything but. Quantum theory predicts that a vacuum is actually a writhing foam of particles flitting in and out of existence."

"The result was a shower of microwave photons shaken loose from the vacuum, the team claims. The group's analysis shows that the frequency of the photons was roughly half the frequency at which they wiggled the mirror ï¿½ as was predicted by quantum theory."

Now you must suffer the consiquences John Smith

The barren yuca mountain range was the best and safest choice for the peope of Nevada now they will have nuclear fallout everytime it rains.Chemtrails aint shit compared to radioactive fall out when HAARP spills the nuclear fuel into the great lakes!.Cheronobyl is still suffering the effects and the trade winds are still spreading the cancer causing radioactivity!

Was that similar to telluric currents or some other phenomenon ? Ah-

From Wiki:

Extremely low frequency 1982 aerial view of the Clam Lake, Wisconsin ELF facility.Electromagnetic waves in the ELF frequency range (3–30 Hz) (see also SLF) can travel through the oceans and reach submarines anywhere. Building an ELF transmitter is a formidable challenge, as they have to work at incredibly long wavelengths:
The US Navy's system (called Seafarer) operated at 76 hertz,[1] the Soviet/Russian system (called ZEVS) at 82 hertz.[2] The latter corresponds to a wavelength of 3658.5 kilometers. That is more than a quarter of the Earth's diameter. Obviously, the usual half-wavelength dipole antenna cannot be constructed, as it would spread across a large country.

Instead, one has to find an area with very low ground conductivity (a requirement opposite to usual radio transmitter sites), bury two huge electrodes in the ground at different sites, and then feed lines to them from a station in the middle, in the form of wires on poles. Although other separations are possible, 60 kilometers is the distance used by the ZEVS transmitter located near Murmansk. As the ground conductivity is poor, the current between the electrodes will penetrate deep into the Earth, essentially using a large part of the globe as antenna. The antenna length in Republic, Michigan was approximately 52 kilometers (32 miles). The antenna is very inefficient. To drive it, a dedicated power plant seems to be required, although the power emitted as radiation is only a few watts.
Its transmission can be received virtually anywhere. A station in Antarctica at 78°S 167°W noticed when the Soviet Navy put their ZEVS antenna into operation.[2]

Due to the technical difficulty of building an ELF transmitter, only the USA and the Russian Navy owned such systems. Until it was dismantled in late September 2004, the American Seafarer, later called "Project ELF" system (76 Hz) consisted of two antennas, located at Clam Lake, Wisconsin (since 1977) and at Republic, Michigan in the Upper Peninsula (since 1980). Before 1977, the Sanguine system was used, placed in the Laurentian Shield in Wisconsin. The Russian antenna (ZEVS, 82 Hz) is installed at the Kola Peninsula near Murmansk. It was noticed in the West in the early 1990s. The British Royal Navy once considered building their own transmitter at Glengarry Forest, Scotland, but the project was canceled.

Correction ; ELF facility at Clam Lake threw the switch back in '65 NOT in '77.

You don't believe in a "creator" now, do you? That's about the kookiest notion I've ever heard, and from an avowed anti-kook.

Now you're really getting into the absurd.

Did you even take the time to find what Einstein said on the creator?

Do you just climb up in your highchair and await your spoon feeding? Do you just close you mouth when you don't find the babys' pablum to your liking, expecting a serving of another food? ROFLOL!

Oh, you found the big bang theory, and read it, and grok it, huh? It certainly is Alexander Friedmann interpretation of Einsteins' relativity, a universe bent in such a very strange way that everything "runs" away from everything else. However, it is quite possible that the red shift is NOT from the doppler effect, and is actually because of this influence:

http://www.nature.com/news/2011/110603/full/news.2011.346.html or even another, for that matter, can you think of one?

"Gravity" is not a force, the "force" is the ether, gravity is the byproduct/description of where/how ether "forces" things ... and, of course, the compton effect counts for something ...

How might Friedmann have misinterpreted Einsteins equations? What did Einstein say on the matter which would be in disagreement, or agreement with Friedmann?

What does Einstein and his equations say which support Friedmanns' theory, and what could Friedmann have misinterpreted there?

Can you find a good spoon feeding on the net, or not?

Have you taken time to sort things out, or do you just demand spoon feedings like other dime-a-dozen morons who have imagined themselves to be genius material? The time period which you take to review any material(s) and the promptness of your inquiries support the latter!

ROFLOL! Childrens' minds, one thing that is guaranteed to fail is their ability to see themselves for what they are! They are so busy and trapped in defense of their preconceived notions, and angry at their questioning/failures that they lash out in anger ... failing to notice the lashing are landing squarely upon their backs ... and they are stumbling over the "crap" they toss about as diversions ... interesting. A simple course in human psychology would point out to them, that this is a common human trait and failure of ego ...

Them thar Missoura hillbilly noTroll and his "sock" clans

Japanese scientists announced that they can now create "meat" from human fecal matter. The hillbillies never again

HVAC was on an IV-drip far too long, so that actually feeding was no longer necessary. Seriously fat people can't even get out of bed, much less feed themselves or service their private parts.

2316. 3840 Mhz MANIA! Hey! Hey! We're the Monkeys!

Hey! Hey! We're the Monkeys!

For those of you who cannot get enough of the 75/80 meter dirt the band is rocking late nights into the morning hours like the love shack. Consider a quake between two volcanoes things are heating up getting ready to erupt on 3840Mhz (SSB). If 3840 is considered the long hanging schlong then its two nut sacs of the frequency is the paranoid schizoid porky Frank Rossio (kk6fr) and its hairless left nut sac the no talent Napoleon Complex afflicted slob Noel Burman (ki6dkv) the prick is Paul (wd8iaw) of New Mexico. Frank and Noels pictures can be viewed below at the magnificent informative blog below (the bottom captioned picture).
http://pages.suddenlink.net/k6txh
Both Rossio and Burman are also known to frequent 14552.5 (Simplex in the Mojave desert) which they also call the back channel or should that be back door the last chance inn where there's liquor up front and poker in the rear. This channel should be scrutinized because of the feeble minded individual who infest the frequency. But the rag chew on 3840 ended Monday morning with Frank Rossio audibly cocking a .44 caliber gun several times over the air like he was threatening a well liked and very gifted ham radio operators who inadvertently chime in on 3840 without signing. Which is no biggie. We spoke to several DX'ers (Dx'ing is a term for listener) around the United States about 3840. J. Steinberg in a thick Chicago godfather accent from Topanga Canyon comments "Frankly I don't like the guy (kk6fr), he's an arrogant little punk who's nothin' but trouble. And that Noel is a stinkin' dirty rat who brags too much about nothin." Velma Q. from Phelan comments "Laura Smith should knock both their heads together and dump them down the drain like a spoiled egg and what's with kk6fr's fetish for sucking on cherry Popsicles over the air, did the man ever get over his penis envy stage? Good grief!" Mary K.from Burbank in a smokers husk says "I do like that Greg fellow from Utah, he's a beautiful human being and his red Doberman pincher 'Whisky' man oh man he should put that dog down any dog that growls at its master should be ground up into dog food. Doggone it!." The southern sounding Elizabeth from Billings, Montana comments, "oh that John (nv6r) from Ruth, Nevada sounds like he's got a piece of iceberg lettuce stuck between his teeth, yes siree pop. Somebody needs to send him a box of tooth picks."
Despite that the comments are more in favor of recalling the ham licenses of some of the 3840 frequenters. In other 3840 news one retired distinguished ham who is disabled inquired to the balding Chuck Ruff (no6l), who just recently moved with his lovely wife to Tehatchapi, about fixing an antenna that was "incorrectly put up" the old disabled ham operator ended up with a cold silent reply when asked to fix it. Yes there is Wingnuts one of the most entertaining ham operators to come of the woodwork in recent memory. A final comment from a G. Smithson in Kingman Arizona, "I just adore that Wingnut. He's surely may not have the cleanest mouth but he speaks the truth.3840 is the frequency of gypsies, tramps and thieves and the endless summer."

No, thanks. I'm not on disability, retired or have lots of spare-time (like you) to listen to such drivel all day. Johnny from Kookomo, you should get outside your home sometimes and get some exercise before your body decays completely. You brain has already decayed

Would ya like want FRIES with that?
HELLWORLD is now OPEN, and hiring, apply within...

History repeats itself, first as TRAGEDY, then as FARCE.

"to leave now we would send a message to terrorists and other potential adversaries around the world that they can change our policies by killing our people.
It would be open season on Americans."
-- Bill Clinton '93
just before he pulled out of Somalia.

To abandon this area now -- and to rely only on efforts against alQaeda from a distance -- would significantly hamper our ability to keep the pressure on al Qaeda, and create an UNACCEPTABLE RISK of additional attacks on our homeland and our allies.
-- OBAMA'09 two years before he ceded Pakistan to our adversaries and abandoned Afghanistan entirely

Why is the world the way it is?
There is NO conflict among those who do not seek the unearned.

Seizing the unearned, being ceded the undeserved is the sine qua non of Liberalism.

The world factually is the way it is because of LIBs who think they can Fake Reality just as they can Fake the character of a Man, which is why we have the likes of Shameless Retail Politico's who believe they can "take from you in the name of the Common Good".

Such would NOT be tolerated in a society with a long memory.

'Intolerant governments across the globe are "slowly crushing" activist and advocacy groups that play an essential role in the development of democracy'
-- HILLARY'10 barely containing her knowing smile.

LIBs have decried the sins of man as destroying the world.
They have cursed human nature for its unwillingness to practice their virtue. A virtue based on sacrifice, demanding more sacrifieces at every successive disaster. In the name of a return to their core values, they have sacrificed all those evils which they held as the cause of their plight...

They have sacrificed justice to mercy.
They have sacrificed independance to unity.
They have sacrificed reason to blind faith in partisanship.
They have sacrificed wealth to need. They have sacrificed happiness to duty. They have sacrificed self-esteem to self-denial and self-delusion.

They believe that Political Power Grow out the Barrel of a Gun.
They believe that a Rock Throwing Thug just needs Love.
They who believe that a Suicide Bomber can't help it.
They who believe that one person's success can ONLY come at the expense of another.

The purpose of government is to reign in the rights of the people" Clinton'93.

If that's the way they believe, why WOULDN'T we have a world the way it is?

"Every aspect of our lives must be subjected to an inventory"
-- Shameless Politico THUG, Nancy Pelosi'09

A World,
Where the Guilty are Rewarded,
Where the Innocent are Punished.
Where the Mediocre, the Unworthy, the Depraved are Championed on the basis of their Mediocrity, their Unworthiness, their Depravity.

The motivation of Good Men who do Absolutely Nothing is the erroneous belief that it they WON'T be affected -- guess again.
OBAMA is showing us daily how actually-easy it is to get to you, starting with a Poisoned World with Toxic Debt and a cadre of Politico's who known nothing other than Expropriation.

The only thing necessary for Evil to Prosper is for Good Men to do Absolutely Nothing. Why not do Absolutely Nothing as the Desperate and Deliberately Evil pit Man against other men until we exist no more? If not now? When?
if not You? Who?

LIB's plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as it's standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

A betrayal beyond all historical precident, deserves a similar banner.

Yep, and just reminds me of the old Boy Scouts, once again, "Be Prepared!"

Of course, I guess some claim that if you are being threatened, you can just ask the perpetrator to wait until the cops get there, with their guns (and, might never happen if the perp won't let you call them!)

I just don't think I have the faith to make that one work ... others can

According to Hagar and HVAC, you are already drinking fish poop and sperm.

So what the hell are you bitching about human poop food for?

Hello Ramon,

I have one at hand (about 8 years old I believe) and changing the narrow/wide switch changes the RF bandwidth on LW, AM and SW. Changing to narrow, reduces the "HF" part of the audio spectrum (so the tone changes).

You may check the operation when listening to a relative weak station adjacent to a stronger one. When changing to wide, you may experience more interference from the stronger station.

Actually, they are String Trimmers.Weedeater is a Registered Brand Name.My new lawn mower I bought a few months ago at the Dangerous Walmart store is a Weedeater Brand Name lawn mower.

Yeah, in fact of the business,,,, whenever I want to get rid of some weeds I put on one of my old leather gloves (ego there are some thorny briars hiding in some of those weeds) and I get one of my old hacksaws and I hack those weeds out.No Steenkin plastic! I don't use any thing like Round Up for getting rid of weeds.Mostly, I just leave the weeds along, except for the ones my lawn mower cuts down.

Show me where that oil drain plug is!

Hello Ramon,

Are you sure you have the channel spacing (9/10 kHz) set correctly for AM broadcast band. If you are living in Europe, it should be 9 kHz mostly. When a station isn't tuned correctly, changing the narrow/wide switch has little to no effect.

"I never said that," Tremblay insists. "Winter called me and talked to me for about five minutes on the telephone, and she never said she was going to quote me. Then she misrepresented what I said."

In a long post on his professional website ProficioGrafik.com in Montreal, Canada, Tremblay said "Ms. Winter has attributed a conclusion to me in the title that I did not mention in the interview."

He asserted that the way Winter interpreted his comments about the use of OCR (Optical Character Recognition) software in the PDF (Portable Document Format) file of the Obama birth certificate released by the White House "were also not 100 percent accurate."

I simply never expect any honesty or common sense coming from GOP/ZNR redneck FUD-masters, because at least that way I'm never disappointed.

I'm not convinced they know real food from the fake stuff. After all, they deep fry pretty much everything in animal fat, so it all taste the same, as well as kinda poops the same.

Even the creator(s) must be getting a laugh out of their redneck skullduggery and obfuscation.

Personally I'm a great believer in directed panspermia, intelligent design, as well as intelligent redesign. I consider Hagar, HVAC, BDK and rabbi Saul Levy as kinda trial and error upon error, so there's not all that much there worth even redesigning, or any good for spare parts.

Since when has either party told us the whole truth and nothing but the truth?

What government agency has always been open and perfectly honest with us, as their republic that has them employed?

btw, doesn't typing pressure make any difference in how each typed letter looks, as well as the condition of the ribbon.

Were all such forms always started and completed by the same person?

Are all carbon copies going to look exactly alike?

1) No candidate is EVER going to be allowed on the ballot which will work for you, your family, your friends or avg. American citizens.

2) clinton = bush = obama = the-next-one.

3) NOTHING will get any better until this is repaired.

It is going to take a major uprising now to regain our government ... hopefully, it will come soon ... best anyone can do is prepare.

I know what it does its first application was to find oil pockets world wide for Standard oil.Then the military took over and increased the wattage from 40 watts to 1000000,000 watts to create the tesla holowitzer and weather warfare weapons as he demonstated in the Tungaska event.It is also a useful EMF brain altering device which causes organ damage in specific locations world wide for the depopulation. It creates mile wide tornatos that stay on the ground for 100s of miles and earthguakes in desired places!It can cause the rivers of water in the atmosphere to create floods or droughts as they desire!

What did you think it was,something to help mankind I presume?

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Hi ,

I got to know of an exciting event happening in Bangalore on July 2nd.

I guess it will add a great value to all the Testing professionals in the Testing domain.

I believe it is worth attending as there are interesting topics. (See the Sessions below).

The Conference starts at 8.30 AM. The Venue is Nimhans Convention Center, Near Dairy Circle, Bangalore.

The Conference organizers will call you back to confirm. When I called,
they had 300 more seats left.

Please find below is the url to go through the website:

I really don't know what to say. If things actually WERE as the birthers imply, it would mean the whole government, including nearly all republicans and all independents, would have to be involved in the biggest conspiracy ever. The likes of which would make publishers of tabloids die of a massive heart attack en masse.

Has no one ever considered that if a judge will not take the case that there may not be a case at all (especially if it was filed by Orly Taitz (sp?)?

Or perhaps that the FBI is "sitting on it" because they already know it's a bunch of BS?

As I have stated before, is it not logical that all presidential candidates are thoroughly vetted before the general election? Are we to believe that the Secret Service, Dept. of State, FBI, CIA and who knows how many other alphabet agencies would just allow ANYONE to run for president without a thorough background check?

Hello Ramon,

This will definitely improve reception quality. Does this solve the Strange things happen in politics, Brenda Ann. Nothing is really off the table, if you think about it. And Background checks of political candidates? Not necessary. The political process will unearth any anomalies in the candidates background more efficiently than anything 'official.' And considering that the alphabet agencies are all run by political appointees, it's in the incumbents' interest to keep them out of the process or face conflict of interests.

But the truth is, that even if this issue is substantial, there is no protocol in the Constitution for removing the guy from office.
The value of the entire matter is in future handling of qualifications, and developing a vetting process. He's here, regardless of what anyone may think of him. The best solution would be to defeat him through the political processes.

BG The GOP MAfia has control of the press. It leaked out Bush gave GOPer bankers 3.3 trillion(that is twice as much as we owe China. That is lots more than the $280 billion the public was told about. TV should show how poor families live incomparision to the rich. Godfather will not allow that. How they dine. Cars they drive. Schools they go to. Vacations Clubs they belong. How they are treated by police. How poor woman clean up their shit. Reality is the rich GOPer needed that 3.3 trillion to buy slaves,and live in Boca Grande Florida. TreBert

> Yes, he

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

I think the more likely scenario is fear. The Dems obviously would be discredited, the repubs really haven't the balls, most independents are socialists in Congress like Sanders.

Judges, for the most part are political animals. And most government employees just want to make retirement.

And there are 2 othre fears. I beleive that many people beleive there would be a "black backlash" if he was thrown out even for valid reasons (which I think is a racist, BTW) and there is also the matter of confidence in government, all the bills he's signed so being invalidated. And while I joke about Biden becoming president if Obama is out, there is reason to beleive that his election, in that it depended on Obama's election would be invalidated, too. In the last 2 years that would have meant President Pelosi, God Save Us. Now, with the elections coming and his sure defeat, why waste the paperwork?

So it is easy to beleive that such an embarassing fact could be concealed by the few who know the truth, because the FBI is sure as Hell not looking into it, not with Holder as AG.

And really it's not just the "BC". It's the school records and the SSN contradictions. Do you seriously think a Republican would get a pass from the press on something like this?

Yes, I am very cynical. But it's based on my observations. Humans are capable of great stupidity and great evil, often at the same time.

Herman Cain for President! http://hermancain.com/

Actually, if you pay attention, credible "birthers" are saying nothing which they can't find credible and real experts are saying.

But, I do claim fox is participating in a crime when it fails to correct
this:
http://www.wnd.com/index.php?fa=PAGE.view&pageId=314041

And, I do claim you can download a copy of the fraudulent birth certificate from the whitehouse web site and examine it in a free trail copy of adobe illustrator and see if the experts which ARE claiming it is a fraud appear to be correct ... as, all I have seen are morons who are not even that capable but willing to say it is real -- obviously, they can be ignored out of the gate ...

That is one reason, the other would be that all the evidence is correct and they can't examine it, for risk of being forced to admit it ... however, the "trick" of simply ignoring the breaking of the Constitution has a long history with them ...

> As I have stated before, is it not logical that all presidential

No, there is no one, branch, or agency which is made responsible for the vetting ... of course, this is just constructed to ignore this crime, as the Constitution demands it, and they, our public servants, have ALL taken an oath to support it -- a duty which they ignore at the risk of treason ...

I guess what you are saying is, "Gee, I just can't believe there are that many criminals in government."

I think there are ...

However, there is always room in the newsgroups for posts which would "explain" how all the evidence, experts, etc. is in error ... some of us are waiting ... but, it has to be real and stand up to real experts, and not some dummy one in canada who admits he isn't qualified to determine anything with which is being given credit ...

I suppose fox will admit their error today, don't you?

I have serious problems with that logic, when ALL those public servants are taking a oath and swearing to uphold the Constitution.

If they are taking an oath to uphold the Constitution, it is only logical they are given the power to rectify any "mistakes" or crimes which would run contrary to the Constitution ... else, they are swearing to a lie! And, that would be a definition of treason right out of the gate.

No, there is more than ample enough authority and responsibility given to them, in that oath alone, to defend the Constitution and bring anyone violating it to justice ... every other form of "logic" to allow different is simply an attempt to validate a crime ... and, since all the alphabet agencies are under their control and direction, they would simply be a tool which is being involved in the crime(s.)

No. The problem I am experiencing is that the narrow/wide bandwidth switch does not cause any difference in audio quality and I want to know if other users are experiencing the same. Thanks Wim.

The thought that political candidates are filtered for public consumption and ALLOWED to run by the police frightens the hell out of me. That's not to say it doesn't happen.

I'm starting to feel Obama was chosen because he seemed to be the antithesis of the moron man-child Bush. He was to show the world just how enlightened, tolerant and nice the USA really was.

It didn't work. He seems to be continuing and even expanding the things started by the clown prince. No changes of any policy of importance. The wars, camps and secret prisons go on and the national debt continues to rise. The Money Lending Class sends a heartfelt 'Thank You!'

Exactly, and I've been saying that since 1967. I saw the decline of our republic way back then with the bogus Vietnam thing, not that it wasn't getting screwed up and well on its way into the crapper as of more than a century before.

You hope he's defeated, but the current crop of possible opponents looks pretty weak, IMO, and I voted for the GOP candidate half the times I've voted. Romney is about the only one that isn't deranged or a "dead candidate walking", like Gingrich.

Um, if Obama would have been removed, Biden would have been Potus.

Hello Ramon,

I hope some other people will add their experience. In my opinion, the audio quality should change, so there may be something wrong with the unit. If it is on wide, you will definitely experience adjacent channel/frequency interference problems, especially when listening to crowded parts of the SW spectrum.

With kind regards,

What are the chances that Obama could sue all the birthtards for the non American citizenship claims they're making?
If there was actual problems with his citizenship surely his political

http://articles.latimes.com/2011/jun/13/world/la-fg-missing-billions-20110613
Missing Iraq money may have been stolen, auditors say U.S. Defense officials still cannot say what happened to $6.6 billion, sent by the planeload in cash and intended for Iraq's reconstruction after the start of the war.
After the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq in March 2003, the George W. Bush administration flooded the conquered country with so much cash to pay for reconstruction and other projects in the first year that a new unit of measurement was born.
Pentagon officials determined that one giant C-130 Hercules cargo plane could carry $2.4 billion in shrink-wrapped bricks of $100 bills. ==>They sent an initial full planeload of cash, followed by 20 other flights to Iraq by May 2004 in a $12-billion haul that U.S. officials believe to be the biggest international cash airlift of all time.<== {you can't make this stuff up -- UG}
<snip>

The mystery is a growing embarrassment to the Pentagon, and an irritant to Washington's relations with Baghdad. Iraqi officials are threatening to go to court to reclaim the money, which came from Iraqi oil sales, seized Iraqi assets and surplus funds from the United Nations' oil-for-food program.

It's fair to say that Congress, which has already shelled out $61 billion of U.S. taxpayer money for similar reconstruction and development projects in Iraq, is none too thrilled either.
<snip>
"Congress is not looking forward to having to spend billions of our money to make up for billions of their money that we can't account for, and can't seem to find," said Rep. Henry A. Waxman (D-Beverly Hills), who presided over hearings on waste, fraud and abuse in Iraq six years ago when he headed the House Government Reform Committee.

Theft of such a staggering sum might seem unlikely, but U.S. officials aren't ruling it out. Some U.S. contractors were accused of siphoning off tens of millions in kickbacks and graft during the post-invasion period, especially in its chaotic early days. But Iraqi officials were viewed as prime offenders.

The U.S. cash airlift was a desperation measure, organized when the Bush administration was eager to restore government services and a shattered economy to give Iraqis confidence that the new order would be a drastic improvement on Saddam Hussein's Iraq.

The White House decided to use the money in the so-called Development Fund for Iraq, which was created by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to hold money amassed during the years when Hussein's regime was under crippling economic and trade sanctions.

The cash was carried by tractor-trailer trucks from the fortress-like Federal Reserve currency repository in East Rutherford, N.J., to Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, then flown to Baghdad. U.S. officials there stored the hoard in a basement vault at one of Hussein's former palaces, and at U.S. military bases, and eventually distributed the money to Iraqi ministries and contractors.
<snip>
Iraqi officials argue that the U.S. government was supposed to safeguard the stash under a 2004 legal agreement it signed with Iraq. That makes Washington responsible, they say.

Abdul Basit Turki Saeed, Iraq's chief auditor and president of the Iraqi Board of Supreme Audit, has warned U.S. officials that his government will go to court if necessary to recoup the missing money.

"Clearly Iraq has an interest in looking after its assets and protecting them," said Samir Sumaidaie, Iraq's ambassador to the United States.

accounted for."

Bowenï¿½s office released an audit last year that found inadequate accounting for $8.7 billion of another $9.1 billion in subsequent shipments of Iraqi cash that the Defense Department sent to Iraq after January 2004. It found several cases of bribery, fraud and money laundering by U.S. officials that resulted in eight criminal convictions and $7.8 million in fines,

You're thinking logically. That doesn't happen to _____________tards.

It's like poison to their fantasies and they can't handle it.

Excellent point. He is obviously being called out on the fraudulent birth certificate he is attempting to pass off, just to keep him from gaining any chance of ever being able to engage in criminal activities in the public servant office of president, again.

Obviously, if the charges were false, and he was damaged, which he is, he could sue and press charges, and seek monetary restitution, and retraction of claims ...

However, since it is all true, he has to count on idiots allowing him to just keep getting away with his crimes ... but he can't do a damn thing, first time he does, and it enters a courtroom, it is all over for him ...

JS

So how big of a pile will there be then in the ocean after they move the stockpiles buried at every nuclear plant waiting for a safe site to open.

Red Tide is toxic matter belched off the ocean floor everytime there is a continental shelf shift(trimmer)!

The nuclear containers are sure to erode and the nuclear waste will rise with the tides and be airborn.Will the rain drops glow at night or what would filter the contaimination spread by the trade winds and the jet stream?

I should have caught that with mountain range indicating the presence of a fault line.

Then they must find a land based place father away from any fault line to bury the contaimination!

All this occured because the government kept Teslas free energy under wraps.The controlling elite would have lost trillions of $$.Ford's tin lizzy would have had an electric motor,OPEC would not exist and the wars for oil would not be needed!

HAARP produces it's own free energy(electrical power) from resonant frequency(RF),so why do we have to use a costly alternate source?

According to Wiki : HAARP started in 1990 . That is what it says . And Standard Oil has been de-monopolized just around 1911 . Tunguska Blast , of course, was even earlier- it took place on June 30,1908 . Are you Another Time Traveller , that is visiting this newsgroup ?

"obamacon", a spin off of the gay and fast moving musical, "Government a Con-Con." A story about government in the early 2000's, in a mythical America, and spoofs sodom and gomorrah from biblical times!

In politics all numbers are suspect.

For example, Tools claims that Bush killed millions of Iraqis.

Pipebombs are really just homemade ones. Some homemade plastic explosive, some mercury fulminate, some knowledge of how to homebrew incendiaries ... a search of www.startpage.com with some of the above for search terms and you don't have to look far ...

Some glycerin, nitric, sufuric acid and some very clean diatomaceous earth and you are on your way to homemade dynamite.

The most important thing is remote, desolate and safe area(s) to try out your creations ...

Watchin Ace Drummond, ''Chapter 6: Evil Spirits'' on the TCM channel.
I saw a big Shortwave Radio, on the front of the Radio it said, The Octopus.Weird looking, it had something like a horizontally mounted clear plastic thingy that was revolving around clockwise and counter clockwise on the front panel of the Radio when the Radio was being used.
What was it?

Yeah, the only way you can now tell if a marriage is legit or not, is if the man is really male and the female is really female ...

And, you really can't ask them to drop their drawers for you, now can you?

Besides, examining for the small and telltale scars of surgery can get quite embarrassing ...

So, I guess you are correct, marriage is down the tubes, alright ... :-(

Someday, these queers are going to have to be dealt with and sanity restored, yanno'?

Anybody that wants to edit wiki pedia can do so simply by signing in! Fox(Ruport Murdoch got sued for editing it to reflect his interest.

He also changed Propagation and added circular polarity to replace the combination of both vertical and horizontal.Fact is there is no such thing as circular polarity it was a fictitous charater designed to sell a special lnb that could receive both polarties at once, because propagation transforms one polarity into the other and then back as effected by the atmosphere.When vertcal transmissions reverse polarity due to propagation the recieving antenna needs to be changed to compensate,thus one that can recieve both polarities at once can maintain a useable balance and not fade into distinction.

Then the left hand helical verses the right hand helical was said if co-phased produces a transmitted circular polarity.This is still nort true a co-phased antena system simply is stronger than a single antena of the same wave-length. thus the signal is stronger and since it is producing one vertical transmission on one antenna then the opposite on the other the signal is maintained to a better level.

Now pull up up ARCO/Standard oil and you can see how long they owned HAARP before the Navy took over and encreased its out put.

Tungaska Event was a deliberate demonstration put on by Tesla from Wardenclif in 1908 to impress the scientific expedition.He was the one that created the Aurora Borealis and HAARP is keeping the northern lights glowing! Tungaska was a by produt or miscalculation of his demonstration and the military was highly impressed with that technology ! HAARP came along later,but was designed from Tesla technology by one of his students.

There is no such thing as time travel.There is no such thing as a time constant E=MCsquared was Government Technobable as is the electron,blackholes and gray matter,to herd the scientist away from free energy.

One of my old radios, it says on the front, ORION TELEPHONE AMP. & RADIO 15 TRANSISTOR SOLID STATE AC/DC.
There are three knobs, Tuning, AM TEL. and OFF - VOLUME.On the left side, there is a place for AC 117 V, and two jacks, EAR and T.P
Inside, there is a place for a 9 Volt battery.
I assume to presume the radio can be used as a Telephone amplifier.

My tiny-tenna is 130 ft in lenght and 30 ft higher, if it was mile long it would be great for VLF ...

Eddie Rickenbacker was a man of adventure, World War I fighter ace, racing car driver, military advisor and a pioneer of air transportation.

Rickenbacker's hero, Ace Drummond, is an airborne 'G-Man'. In this serial, he travels to Mongolia. His mission is to find out why the villain of the piece, known as 'The Dragon', is preventing International Airways from building an airport.

Meanwhile Peggy Trainor is searching for her father, who has disappeared. The two meet to solve the mysteries.

BWAHAHAHAHAAA!! The parade of morons continues!!

Hint: The link is a LIE. The birth certificate has been proven beyond doubt to be genuine and, unlike McCain, Obama has proven he was born on US soil. He's the first president in our entire history ever to do so.

Obama and the Dems SAVED AMERICA and capitalism from certain Republican-induced collapse. Every day they remain in office is one more day saved from GOP's dream of enslavement of the masses to the rich.

That ''thingy'' would make a real Good fish lure.
One time back when I was eight years old, at Eagle Lake,Missy Sippy, I fell out of the boat and my pants slipped down.I reckon that fish thought my ''thingy'' was a fish lure.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration

Well, even if Rickmers had been to Miami he'd not have seen it because his head is stuck so far up his ass.

He is, after all, the Winner of the 2010 Golden Come-Along Award.

The Golden Come-Along Award is given to that individual who has been deemed to have had his/her head stuck so far up their ass during the previous year that it would require the assistance of a come-along to pull it out.

I have been to Miami before, and all of the major Cities in Florida.If Florida is a foreign Country, that means I own a half acre of Land in Putnam County, in the 'foreign Country' of Florida.That was back in 1990 when I bought my half acre of Land, a day or two after that crazy Danny Rolling had murdered some people at University of Florida in Gainesville.There were a LOT of news vehicles parked at University of Florida Gainesville, my old buddy went with me, we took turns driving.We saw those news vehicles, some of them had satellite dishes on them.

If any American State is to be considered foreign, I reckon Hawaii, the Land of Get your Phony Fraud Fake Ass Birth Certificates Right Here! is as damn foreign as it gets.

Well, see, this needs to all be vetted in a public forum, like the point you just made, they should be sterilized to keep the gene pool clean -- I can agree with that.

But, there bizarre "in your face" and crazy behaviors must be stopped. And, their demand for special rights, they need no rights other than what everyone else has ... and, their seeming classification as a "special group", that needs to end immediately ... and the "hate crime" BS, either that applies to everyone, or not one, DUH!

I mean, it is enough to make you think our government is overtaken with queers!

And, is isn't a troll who notices sick human horrors running around with insane behaviors and demanding special treatments!

Like marriage, it is mentioned in Genesis, in the bible. Those stories in Genesis are older than written language, they were verbally passed down until written language was developed and they could be recorded. This was when marriage was given by religion to man and woman, it predates mention of any homosexuals running about in a frenzy.

Homosexuals have no right to start tampering with religion, they don't need the religious bond of marriage, I mean come on, it is just more of their destructive chit to destroy sanity.

Government can't pass any laws to regulate religion, they can't tell religion what its' bond of marriage is or is not, the damn fools can't just trash the Constitution to be able to trash marriage.

I mean, come on, only queers have the screwed up mental state, or else no mental state at all, which allows them to act insane and demand impossible and insane things ... the God of religion, the owner and giver of marriage, called homosexuals an abomination ... it is damn well apparent two abominations can't marry ... think about it!

Well, the first mention of marriage was God giving it to a man and a woman ... it is a religious thing, what the hell is government doing breaking the separation of church and state?

They want the church running government now that they are breaking the separation between them?

I mean, just because the insanity of homosexuality drives its' victims insane is no excuse for government to make such a mistake, unless all of them are suffering from the same illness, or at least the majority!

Here is marriage from Genesis 2:18-24:
"18 The Lord God said, " It is not good for the man to be alone. I will make a helper suitable for him." 19 Now the Lord God had formed out of the ground all the beasts of the field and all the birds of the air. He brought them to the man to see what he would name them; and whatever the man called each living creature, that was its name. 20 So the man gave names to all the livestock, the birds of the air and all the beasts of the field. But for Adam no suitable helper was found. 21 So the Lord God caused the man to fall into a deep sleep; while he was sleeping, he took one of the man's ribs and closed up the place with flesh. 22 Then the Lord God made a woman from the rib he had taken out of the man, and he brought her to man. 23 The man said, "This is now bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; she shall becalled 'woman' for she was taken out of man." 24 For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and they will become one flesh."

What gives homosexuals the right to change marriage? What gives the government the right to meddle in the rights of religion when it is strictly barred from ever doing so?

U.S. Constitution -- Amendment 1:
"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

Government needs to go screw itself along with the homosexuals on this one!

Government can give the right to enter into any contracts which it wants homosexuals to have, but it CANNOT give the religious act/institution/practice/tradition/etc. It is simply criminal, treasonous and unConstitutional for them to even think of it!

This is another government crime, that is all, and one which needs ignored, like the rest ...

JS

The United States is a Godley Nation founded upon beleifs taught to us by God through his Word. When law maker's give special rights to a perverse minority, that practices acts called abominations by God himself, this is likeley to be the last straw that will make God remove his special protection for America, and at worsts cause Him to destroy the entire Ungodley earth.

It was only a little 'nibble'.

Could Jon Huntsman be the next Prez?
http://www.rense.com

Country Muscic (it came from Ireland) speaks of Love and Relationship.
NO!, it doesn't! Country Music speaks of Breaking up and Divorces.

Our D.I.V.O.R.C.E becomes Final todayyyy,,,, little J.O.H.N.N.Y and I are moving awayyyyyyy,,,,,,,

My gawd man, didn't you see the movie about the great white shark, didn't you have about the capt'n and the whale?

STAY OUT OF THE WATER!

Country music is beer drinkin' music, and, people do tend to make idiots out of themselves, when drinking ...

Ever notice, all you have to do to stop having problems is to stop drinking ...

Well, it is a free nation, and that is why a bunch of queer homosexuals can't go around shitting on everyones' rights, trashing the Constitution and demanding special protections, laws, etc.

That is what we have prisons and laws for ...

Hmmm...they had all that power to do all that damage in 1908, the military knew about it, and yet...

...and yet this technology wasn't used in World War I (or WW II)? It seems like somebody missed the boat.

Liberty Net: June 18, 2011

http://3950.net/2011/06/liberty-net-june-18-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

N2IRJï¿½s recently improved receiving setup proved its mettle during this weekï¿½s edition of the Liberty Net, and, even though the thunderstorm static was very high, the conversations and debates were as scintillating as ever. If you have an amateur station which is 75-meter-capable, please join us!

Here are a few examples from the hundreds of ideas expressed this time on amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net:

ï¿½ Why is it that during the Republican presidential debates, none of the heavily-promoted candidates breathed even a word about one of the main causes of Americaï¿½s economic decline: the invasion of our country by millions upon millions of illegal Mestizo scab laborers? (8 minutes)

ï¿½ As inflation spirals higher and higher, more and more Americans are starting to stockpile food and other necessities. (11 minutes)

ï¿½ The total inaction of the FBI on obvious criminal activity in the Executive Branch in Washington is ample proof of the corruption of that agency. (14 minutes)

ï¿½ Could it possibly be that our economic problems are due in large part to the huge amounts of money we have wasted killing innocents for Israel in the Middle East? (40 minutes)

ï¿½ Is Donald Trump planning to be part of a ï¿½spoilerï¿½ third party presidential ticket, in order to be paid off to quit the race? ï¿½ paid off possibly not in cash, but in under-the-table permissions to build several new casinos? (56 minutes)

ï¿½ No matter who makes the next revolution, or even if there isnï¿½t one anytime soon, one thing is sure: The corporate bailouts and underclass entitlement programs are over. The productive classes have been stripped bare and the money is gone. (1 hour 13 minutes)

ï¿½ The mayor of the formerly great city of Philadelphia decided to tax soda pop and created a huge uproar ï¿½ but the very same people were utterly complacent when billions upon billions were given to the bankers. (1 hour 17 minutes)

ï¿½ The Washington regime is illegally murdering thousands in Libya and there is not enough strength in Congress to stop it ï¿½ and now the regime has begun yet another killing campaign in Yemen. (1 hour 26 minutes)

ï¿½ Why do so many Christians fanatically support Zionism, and Israel ï¿½ where one can be thrown in jail for promoting Christianity? (2 hours 29 minutes)

Thanks to N2SAG and N2IRJ and W1WCR, you can listen to the Liberty Net every week ï¿½ somewhere near 3950 kHz, plus or minus the interference (lately, substantially above that frequency) ï¿½ every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time, and also via the Web. You can also download the Liberty Net right here at http://3950.net and listen in your car, at work, or wherever you like. Check in on the air and join the excitement!

Governments shouldn't be defining sacraments such as marriage.

The big change that threatened the institute of marriage was divorce.
But that was in the past so it doesn't count.

It's all about money . I think . By obtaining certain legal rights this will enable them to be elegible for "spouse's" benefits .Makes a

Hmmm...seems like they overlooked a few other things. Like maybe two TRILLION dollar "wars" draining the Treasury. And overlooked the fact that many illegal laborers DO actually pay taxes and Social Security.

BTW, "Mestizo" definition: Mestizo is a term traditionally used in Latin America and Spain for people of mixed European and Native American heritage or descent. If they mean 'illegal aliens' (aka Mexicans), they should just say so.

There appears to be two contradictory issues with homosexuality on the right, and by food nazis on the left:

1. It is real yucky, so I need to force everybody else to stop so that I don't see it.

2. It's real yummy, so I need to force everybody else to stop so that I'm not tempted.

I find it to be the truth. At first I thought, live and let live. But, since the arseholes have made a shit-mess of everything and continue to make it worse, it is time to speak up and tell them their place and that enough is enough.

We don't want a world of queer homosexual, child molesters and perverts.

It is a good standard of living, a nice place to raise children, etc. which is of importance ... I think everyone has run out of patience with the silly bastards.

I don't think so. The control freaks don't even finish with attempting to control you over one thing, before they already have began the second and contemplation of the third.

Control is just a mental illness, if they can't control your actions, they will simply attempt to control your thoughts, Orwell had it right in 1984 ...

There are Ten Commandments to run Gods world, there are over 10,000 criminal laws on the books of our government and they are still passing more -- how many of the 10,000 do you know about?

Right now, you are guilty of breaking some law, you just don't know what it is.

If government wants them to have those, they can give them to them, it has nothing to do with marriage.

But, the homosexuals have no understanding of that. I do believe you are correct, they think it is a bunch of government benefits!

SB PROP @ ARL $ARLP025
ARLP025 Propagation de K7RA

ZCZC AP25
QST de W1AW
Propagation Forecast Bulletin 25 ARLP025
From Tad Cook, K7RA
Seattle, WA June 24, 2011
To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP025
ARLP025 Propagation de K7RA

Over the past week (June 16-22) the average daily sunspot number rose nearly 20 points to 55, and average daily solar flux readings increased by nearly 9 points to 98.6. All geomagnetic indices declined slightly. These increases or decreases are relative to the previous seven days, before June 16.

For the past month we've been looking nervously toward ARRL Field Day, because a forecast from NOAA and USAF showed possibly unsettled geomagnetic conditions on Friday, June 24, and continuing through Field Day weekend.

The forecast has evolved from troubling to frightening, and back again. Early in June the predicted planetary A index for June 24-26 was 18, 18 and 15. Then on June 7 it changed to 15, 15, and 10, a little better. Then a week later things looked even more promising on June 14 at 15, 10 and 5. But on June 17 it was revised upward, to 30, 15 and 5. A planetary A index of 30 indicates a geomagnetic storm.

The next day on June 18 the forecast shifted to 25, 18 and 8, and on June 19 it changed again to 25, 18 and 10. June 20 saw a slight change to 25, 18 and 8 again, then June 21 it shifted to 15, 40 and 25. An A index of 40 on the first day of Field Day sounds ominous. Then June 22 it changed again to 30, 10 and 10, and now the June 23 prediction for June 24-26 shows a planetary A index of 30, 18 and 12.

Basically we would love to see the A index as low as possible, five or less would be wonderful. The latest news is that the solar wind from a Coronal Mass Ejection which occurred on the solstice is moving slower than originally thought, which means a weaker effect here on Earth. A planetary K index of 5 is expected when the storm arrives, now predicted at 0700z on June 24, which is 35 hours before the start of Field Day, 1800z on June 25.

At 0640z on June 23, the Australian IPS Radio and Space Services released a bulletin stating that increased geomagnetic activity is expected on Jun4 23-24 due to the coronal mass ejection, but that the effect on June 23 is expected to be mild, with a small chance of isolated storm periods.

Geophysical Institute Prague predicts active conditions June 24, unsettled to active on June 25, quiet to unsettled June 26-27, and quiet on June 28-30.

The last forecast before Field Day should be on Friday, June 24, released after 2100z. Check http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpmenu/forecasts/45DF.html and also http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DGD.txt for the latest K indices. The similar http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DSD.txt shows you solar flux, sunspot number, and other data such as sunspot area.

The most recent forecast from USAF and NOAA has solar flux at 95 on June 24-25, 90 on June 26-30, 85 on July 1, and 95, 93 and 90 on July 2-4 Predicted planetary A index for June 24-26 is 30, 18, and 12, 8 on June 27-28, and 5 on Jun 29 through July 1.

Ron Zond, K3MIY of Clarion, Pennsylvania found an interesting article in an old QST from a half century ago. John Chambers, W6NLZ published "After Sunspots - What?" on pages 66-67 in the March 1960 QST. I was about to dig out that old issue when I remembered that ARRL members can access an archive of QST magazines running from December 1915 to December 2007 at http://www.arrl.org/arrl-periodicals-archive-search. I just searched on Name: Chambers Call: W6NLZ Year: 1960 and went right to it.

This article was written just after the peak of Cycle 19 (which was huge!) and in it the author speculates on what a future with little or no sunspots might hold.

I thought W6NLZ seemed like a familiar call from my childhood, and he was known back then for his VHF records establishing contact with KH6UK. Check out http://wy6k.com/Shack%20Photos/1961/Great%20Shack%20Photos%201961%20Page%202.htm for photos of both of them.

Thanks to Howard Lester, N7SO of Schuylerville, New York, K3CWF and a number of others who sent in this article from Sky & Telescope about disappearing sunspots: http://www.skyandtelescope.com/community/skyblog/newsblog/123844859.html. Howard notes that there is no mention of the dissenting view.

Jeff Hartley, N8II of Shepherdstown, West Virginia sent in his observations on recent conditions: "Conditions have seemed down from

2-3 weeks ago, but there has been a decent amount of sporadic-E as we near the peak of the season which seems to me to be right around July 1 on average. Late into the evening openings to EU on 15 meters and higher have been much rarer, but there was some good propagation reported in the All Asia CW contest by others.

"Around 0100Z Sunday on 15 phone, I worked Jim, E51JD in Rarotonga, South Cook with a S9 signal. He was only running 100W to a small low tribander.

"Saturday June 18, I was active in the WV QSO party and the sporadic-E continued to abound again this year as it did in 2010. Not much was happening right at the 1600Z start, but by 1700Z skip on 20 phone was short enough to work the other side of WV, southern VA, and many in NC. I even worked a guy in Weaverville, NC in the Smokies where I had stopped for breakfast a day ago - small world! There were plenty of OH and KY stations for a while, then the band opened to the northeast and even as close as DE about 140 miles from here! I managed to work all states except AK and VT (propagation and QSO total to neighboring NH was good) in a few hours. 10M was not quite good enough to spend much time there while I was able to operate, but at 0100Z there was double hop Es to CA, NV, and AZ.

"On Friday June 17 around 2200Z, 6 meters was open to FM5AA, FM5AN, V44KAI, and FG5FR.

"There were about the normal amount of Es on 6 meters during the June VHF contest with C6, VP9, a few double hop stations in the Rockies and lots of 4s, 5s and southern 0s logged."

Lawrence, GJ3RAX of the Isle of Jersey observes: "I have had some comments from Nick VE3OWV. I have known him for a long time as we were at university together in England in the early 60s. He has also noticed that, although the sunspots have been increasing recently, the propagation has not improved in the way it did at a similar stage of previous cycles. We have not been able to get back to our skeds on 17 that we used to keep so email has had to do instead. He did say that he has been having QSOs to Europe on 17 at about 11 to 12 pm my time. Normally I only look on the bands during the afternoons so I will start checking them again at that time. I used to enjoy late night QSOs when I was younger but my stamina is now rather less than it used to be!"

Check out K9LA, Carl Luetzelschwab's Propagation column on pages 16-19 in the July 2011 issue of Worldradio, which you can download for free at http://worldradiomagazine.com/. He talks about signal comparisons on the air in the 1980s, and how to use some new tools such as internet connected remote receivers and a reverse beacon network for similar comparisons today.

THIS:
"The ï¿½birthersï¿½ (whom I call ï¿½verifiers,ï¿½ as they seek to verify Obamaï¿½s legitimacy to be POTUS) are concerned with Obamaï¿½s qualifications to be President. Their focus is mainly (but not exclusively) concerned with finding out the truth surrounding Obamaï¿½s birthï¿½where it was, and who his parents were. These are not flaky, off-the-wall issues, but profoundly significant matters of national (not to mention international) importance, that demand answers (especially given Obamaï¿½s shady backgroundï¿½what little we know of it).

There can be no doubt that if there is indeed a legitimate Hawaiian birth certificate for Obama (as opposed to a facsimile), then the powers that be are preventing a forensic examination of it at all costs. Why they are going to such lengths to hide it (if indeed it exists), is a legitimate question to ask. It is our duty as patriotic Americans to ask it."

It should be your duty to get treatment and try to get well. At least give it a shot. I doubt you're treatable at this point, but your family should be stepping in, and at least trying to get you help.

Does this look like a Man with a PLAN? REALLY?

History repeats itself, first as TRAGEDY, then as FARCE.

"to leave now we would send a message to terrorists
and other potential adversaries around the world that they can change our policies by killing our people.
It would be open season on Americans."
-- Bill Clinton '93
just before he pulled out of Somalia.

To abandon this area now -- and to rely only on efforts against alQaeda from a distance -- would significantly hamper our ability to keep the pressure on al Qaeda, and create an UNACCEPTABLE RISK of additional attacks on our homeland and our allies.
-- OBAMA'09 two years before he ceded Pakistan to our adversaries and abandoned Afghanistan entirely

The only thing necessary for EVIL to prosper is for Good Men to do Absolutely Nothing.

You think you can avert the inevitable with dreams and talk?
It's too late for that.

The answer is quite simple.
Good Men can no longer afford to do Absolutely Nothing.

DESERVE FREEDOM
DEMAND COMPETANCE
DEMAND ACCOUNTABILITY DEFEAT LIB STRATEGIC INSANITY.

http://www.amazon.com/Roots-Obamas-Rage-Dinesh-DSouza/dp/1596986255
The Roots of Obama's Rage

The real Obama is a man shaped by experiences far different from those of most Americans; he is a much stranger, more determined, and exponentially more dangerous man than you'd ever imagined. He is not motivated by the civil rights struggles of African Americans in the 1960sthose battles leave him wholly untouched. He is not motivated by the socialist or Marxist propaganda that hypnotized a whole generation of wooly minded academics and condescending liberals those concepts also leave him cold.

What really motivates Barack Obama is an inherited rage an often masked, but profound rage that comes from his African father; an anticolonialist rage against Western dominance, and most especially against the wealth and power of the very nation Barack Obama now leads. It is this rage that explains the previously inexplicable, and that gives us a startling look at what might lie ahead.

In The Roots of Obama's Rage you'll learn: Why Obama's economic policies are actually designed to make America poorer compared to the rest of the world Why Obama will welcome a nuclear Iran Why Obama sees America as a rogue nation worse than North Korea The real reason Obama banished a bust of Winston Churchill from the White House and ordered NASA to praise the scientific contributions of Muslims Why Obama would like to make America's superpower status a thing of the past

Stunning, provocative, original, and telling no one has better diagnosed who Obama is, what he intends to do, and why he poses an existential threat to America than Dinesh D'Souza in The Roots of Obama's Rage.

LIBs. What Price their Vision?

This is Clinton's Legacy,
The proud bastard parentage of the LIBs.
This is Clinton's Bridge to the 21st Century.
A Bridge which is NO BRIDGE because it span no River.
A Legacy which is NO LEGACY because it embody no Legitimacy.
A World Safe for Socialism which is NO WORLD because no one's Rights are Secure.

http://www.appeal-democrat.com/articles/clinton-107813-economy-president.html
Robert Scheer: Bill Clinton's legacy of denial

Does Bill Clinton still not grasp that the current economic crisis is in large measure his legacy? Obviously that's the case, or he wouldn't have had the temerity to write a 14-point memo for Newsweek on how to fix the economy that never once refers to the home mortgage collapse and other manifestations of Wall Street greed that he enabled as president.

EIGHT Years of BUBBA in a Nutshell.

Why should now be any different? Why SO SERIOUS?

We can't be so fixed on our desire to preserve the rights of ordinary Americans..."
Arch-traitor Bill Clinton'93

LIBs plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as its standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

Don't for get FOX claiming an "expert" said the obama fraudulent birth certificate was real! AND, REFUSES TO RETRACT THE ARTICLE IN ERROR!

And, even thought the "expert" said that he said no such thing!

D.I.V.O.R.C.E
as performed by Tammy Wynette

Our little boy is four years old
And quite a little man
So we spell out the words we don't Want him to understand
Like T.O.Y. or maybe S.U.R.-P.R.I.S.E.
But the words we're hiding from him now
Tear the heart right out of me.

Our D.I.V.O.R.C.E. becomes final today
Me and little J.O.E. will be going away.
I love you both and this will be pure H.E. Double L on me
I wish that we could stop this D.I.V.O.R.C.E.

Watch him smile, he thinks it's Christmas
Or his fifth birthday
He thinks C.U.S.T.O.D.Y. spells fun or play
I spell out all the hurtin' words
And turn my head when I speak Cause I can't spell away this hurt
That's drippin' down my cheek

Our D.I.V.O.R.C.E. becomes final today
Me and little J.O.E. will be going away.
I love you both and this will be pure H.E. Double L on me
I wish that we could stop this D.I.V.O.R.C.E.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who,
prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.
